WYMAN'S JOB IS IN DANGER

Dr. Woodburn Declares Mayor Will Be Removed Before February.

TO HOLD ELECTION

Torrance to Act Until New Executive Is Chosen by the People.

OVER YEAR OF TERM REMAINS

"We expect by the graft investigation in Allegheny to remove Mayor James G. Wyman from office and to install Francis J. Torrance, president of select council, in his place until a successor is elected next February. Mayor Wyman's term does not expire until April, 1906, but he will be out of office at least 30 days before the next municipal election on February 21. A successor will be elected in February for the remaining year of his unexpired term."

The above statement was made yesterday by Dr. S. S. Woodburn, one of the leaders in the anti-graft crusade in Allegheny. He stated that the persons supporting the crusade expected to clean out the entire Allegheny city administration before the coming February election, and not only to elect councilmen and a controller in February, but also a new mayor.

Charter Fills the Vacancy.

Dr. Woodburn cited the new charter act, which provides that if a vacancy shall occur in the office of mayor, the president of select council shall act as mayor until the next municipal election occurring more than 30 days after the commencement of such vacancy, and that at the next municipal election a successor shall be chosen for the unexpired term.

If Mayor Wyman should remain in office until April next year he would then enter upon the last year of his term, and, under the new charter, if afterward removed, councils would elect a mayor pro tem to fill his unexpired term.

"We do not expect Mayor Wyman to resign," said Dr. Woodburn. "We expect him to be forced out of office. We claim that he is responsible for the grafting in Allegheny because he is the chief executive of the city, and those against whom charges have been brought are his appointees. They have given bonds to the mayor for their conduct in office.

Responsibility of the Mayor.

"The mayor has given a bond of $25,000 himself for his conduct and he and his bondsmen will be held responsible for the acts of his administration. The mayor is standing by his subordinates, against whom charges have been brought, and we know that he has agreed to indemnify Morris Smith, who has gone on Capt. James Wilson's bail bond for the sum of $1,000.

"We expect to make a clean city of Allegheny, a cleaner city than it has been in 20 years. We are having promising progress and meeting with a great deal of encouragement. We have received many offers of financial assistance to carry on the crusade, some even from Pittsburgh.

"Pittsburgh is every bit as bad as Allegheny in the graft line and we will not favor annexation with Pittsburgh until that city also clears its skirts and drives the grafters out of business."

A call was made at the residence of Mayor Wyman last night, but the reporter was told that the mayor was out of the city. No information as to his whereabouts or the time of his return was given.

THIRTY PASSENGERS INJURED IN A WRECK

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—Fast train No. 10 of the Wabash Railroad Company was wrecked this morning at 10:20 within the city limits of St. Louis. Of the 30 or more who were injured, six were taken to the city hospital, where the engineer, J. P. Hines, and the fireman, D. J. Llewellyn, with probably die from the effects of scalds from the escaping steam.

The less serious of the hurt, together with the unharmed passengers of the wrecked train, were brought back to the Union station and transferred to the Banner Blue limited of the Wabash line and left for Chicago at 2:30. The train was crowded with excursionists, most of whom lived at points north and east of Chicago, many coming from Canada and New England.

JACKSON BOYS NOW IN JAIL

THEIR ACTION KEPT SECRET

CHARLESTON, W. VA., Nov. 12.—Edward Jackson, who killed Sheriff Daniels at Montgomery, last Thursday morning, and his brother George, who had been fugitives from justice after the tragedy, surrendered at Montgomery and are now safely behind the bars of the Kanawha county jail.

The Jacksons had been hiding in the coal mines surrounding the town of Montgomery, while heavily armed posses, incited by the heavy rewards offered for their capture and with bloodhounds, to assist in the hunt, had been scouring the mountains vainly trying to get some trace of their whereabouts. It is believed that relatives and friends of the Jacksons knew of their hiding place and kept them supplied with food.

When assured that it was safe for them to do so, the two men came in and gave themselves up. Their surrender was made to Justice Davis at Montgomery last night. Their presence in the town was kept a secret and early this morning they were taken across the Kanawha river, where they were placed on a train and brought to Charleston.

WASHINGTON WITHOUT TELEGRAPHIC SERVICE

National Capital Completely Cut Off from the Outside World for Several Hours.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—As the result of a snowstorm which set in here shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, Washington tonight for several hours was completely cut off from telegraphic and telephonic communication with the outside world. Later a wire was obtained west, but none north, south or east. Both the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph Companies report severe damage to their wires and their inability to get any messages through.

Inquiry at the railway station developed the fact that trains were departing on schedule time, but that incoming trains were three or more hours late.

The snowfall of today was the first of the season, several inches covering the ground. It started with a drizzling rain, which later turned into a heavy wet snow. The local telephone service was seriously hampered.

FEAR FOR HUNTERS AT ATLANTIC CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 13.—A severe wind, rain, hail and snow storm prevailed here today and tonight. High tides have covered the back part of the city, in several instances inundating cellars in cottages. The damage done as a whole is very little. Some concern is felt over the safety of several gunning parties which started up Grassy bay on Friday and Saturday. No wrecks have been reported.

Arm Torn Off at Elbow.

CONNEAUT, O., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Marvin G. Hall, employed at the plant of the Brown Hoisting Company, was crippled for life while oiling the machinery. Another employe, not noticing Hall, started the engine. Hall's arm was caught and torn off at the elbow. Hall formerly lived at Cambridge Springs, Pa.

HIP IS DRIVEN ASHORE IN GALE

CREW WAS PROBABLY LOST

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WOODS HOLE, MASS., Nov. 13.—The two-masted schooner Earcularius, Capt. Nason of Rockland, Me., went ashore in the severe northeast gale shortly before dark tonight, about three-quarters of a mile west of Tarpaulin Cove, on the island of Naushon. At sunset the seas were breaking over the craft, masthead high.

Keeper Carson of the Tarpaulin Cove lighthouse and a man named Robinson, one of the keepers of the Forbes estate, saw the schooner when she struck. It was just before dark and a terrific gale was blowing. The schooner was coming through Vineyard sound from the eastward. The schooner tacked and tried to work into the cove for an anchorage, but the wind bore her off and as she swung away she struck with a crash upon a ledge of rock no more than 100 yards from the lighthouse. Carson and Robinson were unable to render any assistance to the men on board of the schooner. The crew numbered four men, and all were plainly seen when the vessel struck, but darkness set in almost immediately and nothing more was seen of the men of the vessel.

The nearest life-saving station on the north side of the Vineyard sound is at Cuttyhunk, 20 miles from Tarpaulin Cove. No lights were shown from the schooner after she struck and no answer was given to the frequent hailings of Carson and Robinson. According to Keeper Carson, it would mean certain death for the ill-fated men on board the vessel to attempt to reach the shore in a small boat.

At 9 o'clock tonight it was feared that all on board had perished, and it was not believed that the vessel would hold together until daylight. She struck in a particularly exposed position and no vessel could be expected to stand the terrible pounding on the jagged rocks to which she was subjected.

FOOT OF SNOW FELL.

Much Damage Done to Telegraph Lines and Trains Are Delayed in Central Pennsylvania.

YORK, PA., Nov. 13.—Telephone and telegraph wires are down, trolley cars are stalled, railway trains are greatly delayed and there is a general suspension of traffic in this city and throughout York county tonight as the result of what is said to be the heaviest snowstorm York ever experienced at this time of year.

It is estimated that snow fell to a depth of a foot on the level. The city is in darkness owing to the crossing of wires and the falling of many poles, due to the wires being weighted down with snow. No attempt was made tonight to remedy conditions. All telephone service is entirely out of commission.

Captain Drowned—After Terrific Battle With High Seas Liner Reaches Cleveland.

PASSENGERS PANIC-STRICKEN

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13.—The John Gregory "turned turtle" outside the harbor in the fierce storm which is raging along the lakes. Capt. Dell Minney was drowned and three members of the crew rescued by the life-saving crew.

Five minutes after 12 o'clock this afternoon, almost six hours behind schedule time, the steamer City of Buffalo of the Cleveland & Buffalo Transit Company steamed in the river after a short and heroic battle with wind and wave in which she was the conqueror. As the City of Buffalo came between the piers it was discovered that she had indeed had a hard fight. Her bulwarks forward on the berth deck on port and starboard sides had been smashed about 25 feet or more aft from the bow. The entire front of the main cabin had been stoved in by a gigantic sea, which swept the entire cabin. Capt. W. H. Smith was on the bridge. The ship's carpenter and a number of men were busy at work repairing the damage. As the steamer proceeded up the river, passengers one by one and two by two began to appear on deck. Their faces were white from fear. The clothing of a number had been drenched.

A woman, whose name could not be learned, had laid down on the floor between the bulkhead and the front cabin wall. She was helpless with seasickness and fear. How she escaped being crushed to death by a heavy box, which was swept from the lower deck through the front wall, neither she nor any members of the crew can tell. This wave also stove in the front of the forward state rooms on this deck on both the starboard sides. It carried the forward walls into the next stateroom aft. Luckily neither of these four staterooms were occupied and there was no loss of life. The passengers were panic stricken during the storm and the crew had great trouble in quieting them.

STORM PARALYZES WIRE SERVICE IN BALTIMORE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—A snow, wind and rain storm which developed here early this morning and continued throughout the day and night, caused an almost complete prostration of electric light, telegraph, telephone and trolley wires. A number of accidents were caused by the heavily charged wires during the day and evening, but so far as known there have been no fatalities. With the exception of a few Western Union wires to Philadelphia and New York, Baltimore is cut off from communication with the other points of the country.

The local weather observer sent out this evening a warning to masters of vessels to the effect that a second storm is fast travelling up the Atlantic coast and is expected to reach this section tonight. Aside from the interruption to telegraphic and telephonic communication with the outside world and the minor accidents above referred to, there had been no serious results recorded at midnight.

LONG TELEGRAPHIC DETOURS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—New York is entirely cut off from the south and west by a fierce hurricane accompanied by rain and snow, which is sweeping the Atlantic coast.

Starting from Florida last night the storm of wind and rain has come up the coast at almost cyclonic speed. Early this morning it was central off Cape Hatteras, although its ever-gathering force was felt far to the northward.

Rain began falling in New York at 5 a. m. and early in the morning changed to a wet snow. The wind, which had been blowing moderately, veered to the southeast and shortly assumed hurricane proportions. At 6 o'clock tonight the local weather bureau noted a velocity of 42 miles an hour, which increased to 48 miles at 8:30 o'clock. That speed kept up for several hours. At 10 o'clock the storm center was at Block Island, where the barometer showed a pressure of 28.62 inches, with the wind blowing 76 miles an hour. At Nantucket the barometer was a trifle higher and the wind 60 miles.

Wire service out of New York is tied up more effectually tonight than at any other time since the blizzard of '88. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies have no direct communication with cities further south than Baltimore, and all western points are cut off.

Messages Sent to the North.

The Postal has been cabling some of its most urgent messages to Canso, N. S., from which point they are wired to Montreal and thence forwarded to Chicago over Canadian Pacific wires. Shortly after noon the telegraph companies commenced to feel the effects of the storm. As wire after wire went down and city after city was lost, the repair gangs were notified, but owing to the day and heavy storm it was long after dark before the full force could be mustered.

Late in the afternoon it was reported that over 100 poles along the Erie railroad had gone down, completely putting the New York-Buffalo-Chicago wires by that route out of service. Recourse for a short time was had to wires via Albany and Syracuse, but a few hours afterward the pressure of the ice on the wires carried them, poles and all, to the ground outside of Poughkeepsie, thereby effectively closing that service. The Western Union was able to keep open the way to Baltimore, Philadelphia and most places in New Jersey, but business for other points save New England was only accepted subject to delay.

Communication between New York and Boston over all lines was uninterrupted. The telegraph officials are unable to state the damages until they can communicate with the territories affected. Every effort is being made tonight to make repairs so that a few wires may be opened up to the south and west by the time business opens tomorrow. Special trains were engaged on most of the roads running out of Jersey City and Hoboken and dispatched late this evening laden with wire repairing gangs.

Ferryboat Sent Ashore.

Owing to the completeness of the tie-up the men do not anticipate much progress on repairs until daylight enables them to examine thoroughly the extent of the damage. The long-distance telephone company has also been badly handicapped in its service. Many of its wires are down in the stormswept area, but as its poles follow highways rather than railway tracks they are not as likely to give way to washouts.

The weather bureau yesterday sent out warning advising sea captains to remain in port over Sunday. Some damage was done in and around New York.

FEAR FOR COASTING VESSELS

SCORE OF PASSENGER SHIPS REPORTED IN TEMPEST'S PATH

A score of passenger steamships were caught in the path of yesterday's gales in the Atlantic ocean off the coast of New York. Some had sailed only the day before, while others were inbound from distant ports. A list of the more important vessels, according to the steamship sailing schedules, follows:

Etruria.	Menominee.	Canadia.
Finland.	Vaderland.	Macedonia.
Minneapolis.	Ryndam.	North Point.
Algeria.	Oscar II.	Louisiana.
Prinzess Irene.	Caracas.	Howard.
Hamburg.	Morro Castle.	Anthony Groves.
Cearense.	Merion.

This list does not include many vessels in the coasting trade which are in the threatened district of the high seas.

A terrific storm, sweeping up the Atlantic coast yesterday isolated the eastern seaboard of the continent. All lines of communication east of the Allegheny mountains were interrupted and the havoc of the elements can only be surmised.

Meager reports received from weather bureau stations east of Pittsburgh early in the afternoon bore forebodings of disaster. A storm of rain moving up from the gulf had turned to snow and sleet and developed a hurricane that threatened dire results to ships at sea and towns along the entire coast. Thousands of miles of telegraph and telephone wires were carried down and trains on all the railroads were caught in the inevitable blockade.

After 3 o'clock in the afternoon not a single word passed over the telegraph wires between New York and Pittsburgh and the fear was expressed that the re-establishment of communication would bring startling news of the blizzard's terrors.

Storm on the Ocean.

High seas have prevailed since noon on Saturday, endangering small coasting vessels, some of which are certain to have been caught in the storm king's grasp. Seaside resorts along the Long Island and New Jersey coast were inundated by giant waves from the tempest-tossed Atlantic.

According to the reports received at the local office of the weather bureau, the storm had its origin off the southeastern coast of Florida on Saturday morning. It struck the southern states and moved rapidly in a northeasterly direction, following the coast line of the Atlantic, sweeping over Florida and deluging the entire area with heavy rains. Yesterday morning it was central off Cape Hatteras and high wind added to its fury. At Philadelphia, later in the day, the rain was chilled to snow and sleet and the tons of freezing water prostrated wires for hundreds of miles, completely isolating the seaboard states from the west. Last night the storm continued and left New York and the New England states buried in an unprecedented fall of snow.

First Time in History.

This is the first time in the history of telegraph that New York and Philadelphia have been entirely cut off from electric communication with the country on this side of the Appalachian highlands. Eight years ago a blizzard in New York interrupted the wires for a few hours and a sleet storm in Philadelphia in 1901 caused similar trouble, but the absolute seperation of all wires had never occurred before.

Messages for the east which were filed last night in the Pittsburgh offices of the Postal and the Western Union Telegraph Companies were sent to their destinations in the mail. The long-distant telephone lines were broken down east of Harrisburg. Pennsylvania railroad trains beyond the Susquehanna were not heard from and nothing was heard of conditions on the Baltimore & Ohio east of Washington Junction, Md.

"It is probable that hurricane signals are waving along the New England coast," said Col. Frank Ridgway, the local weather forecaster. "The weather bureau sent out warnings from 24 to 36 hours in advance of the storm to all shipping points on the northern seaboard and all coasting vessels would have a chance to put back into the harbor for safety."

10,000 MILES OF WIRE IS RENDERED USELESS

Lines of Postal and Western Union Companies Interrupted to All Points In the East.

Ten thousand miles of telegraph wires were rendered useless last night. The damaged lines represented the most important in the world. From Boston on the north to Richmond on the south it was impossible to work a single message. The last that was heard by western operators was that the whole Atlantic seaboard was caught in the relentless grasp of a storm of wind, snow and sleet and that communication in every eastern city was threatened. A few minutes later this gloomy forecast was realized.

The Postal Telegraph Company once separated from New York over the ordinary routes, immediately commenced to "plug up" in the hope of getting in at the "back door." It is an old trick to get New York by way of Albany and the local operators soon had their keys going. The Buffalo chief was in a hopeful mood and a little later Albany reported.

"Can you put us through to New York?" was ticked off a little timidly.

"Not on your life," came back from Albany.

The operators tried and tried again and finally a straggling line was patched up into Gotham. There was exultation, but it lasted only a few minutes. Down it went, and that was the last heard of New York through the long gloomy night. In the Western Union office the same conditions prevailed, and messages for the east were mailed on early trains.

"This is possibly the worst storm that American telegraph companies have ever encountered," said H. J. Colebrook, night chief operator of the Postal company. "Floods and snowstorms frequently 'lay us out' along isolated lines, but it is seldom that a whole area as large as the Atlantic states is affected. It is seldom that snow or wind interrupt business more than a few hours. The trouble tonight is that our most important wires are out of commission and the immense volume of business which naturally has its origin in New York is seriously delayed."

For a while there was a single line through to Philadelphia and it was crowded with telegrams and queries as to the conditions in the neighboring cities, but little could be heard from there during the short time that the wire was in good working order. Operators sat around the offices and talked of experiences in other storms or busied themselves with the light business in western messages.

WIRES BEING BROKEN, TRAIN WAS REPORTED LOST

Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio Railroads Experienced Difficulty in Maintaining Their Service.

"No. 21 is lost somewhere east of Pittsburgh."

This was all the information the officers of the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania railroad had at a late hour last night of the St. Louis and Chicago express, No. 21, which is due at the Union station at 1:50 o'clock in the morning. The train reached here ultimately, but ran alone through the storm zone. This simple bulletin told of the whims and the damage which yesterday's storm had wrought upon the railroads. The telegraph wires were down there and no word of the whereabouts of the train's two sections and their 300 passengers bound for the world's fair could be learned.

The officials of the Pittsburgh division of both the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads were wonderfully surprised at the antics of the wind, rain and snowstorm. Ordinarily when a storm comes along the superintendents of the division that includes the Allegheny mountains have their hands full, for it is on the mountains where trouble is first experienced, as it is there the train-delaying snow falls. Yesterday, however, there was no trouble in the mountains.

Westward of the territory that for hours last night was silent, telegraphically speaking, the storm brought snow. There was an inch of snow at Harpers Ferry, so passengers on the 9 p. m. Baltimore & Ohio train reported, and, of course, as the train climbed to the summit coming toward Pittsburgh the snow increased in depth, about three inches being reported.

At Cresson, on the Pennsylvania railroad main line, the snow was three inches deep, and passengers on the trains arriving last evening said it seemed odd to emerge suddenly into a big expanse of snow only a short time after leaving Altoona, and to come again into an area of rain some miles after leaving Cresson. Passengers from Philadelphia said it rained most of the time after they left that city, but they had no idea that the train which left only two or three hours after they started would be stalled east of Harrisburg. The snow did not delay the earlier Pennsylvania trains more than from 15 to 30 minutes.

STORM SIGNALS WAVE ON ATLANTIC HEADLANDS

Weather Bureau Sent Out Early Warnings to Mariners at All the Seaport Towns.

The interruption of telegraph wires yesterday prevented the local weather bureau office from receiving a single report from eastern stations. Orders had been sent out for a special observation at noon, but it was impossible to communicate the results of this to headquarters or to learn the progress of the storm on the coast.

"We can only guess at the storm's havoc," said Col. Frank Ridgway last night. "Its progress has been watched since its first appearance at Tampa, Fla., and warnings were sent out to all the coast towns acquainting shippers with the probable course of the wind. If these warnings were heeded all will be well. If they were not observed and skippers started to sea with light craft, there will surely be disasters.

"I can easily understand how this damp snow and sleet would cripple the telegraph wires. In New England the temperature may not be sufficiently low to make a heavy snow. The principal damage there will be from the winds which rake the coast. Reports from the extreme west indicate pleasant weather. High wind prevails on Lake Erie off the port of Cleveland and there is another storm in the valley of the St. Lawrence."

sixth street, Manhattan, went ashore on a rocky ledge in Bowery bay. There were 10 passengers and the crew aboard. Owing to the heavy sea it is impossible to send wrecking boats to her, but a police boat has gone to the rescue.

Owing to the fierce downpour of rain the streets of New York were practically deserted today. The high wind played havoc with the street signs, which fell in showers. Many windows were broken and a few passers-by were cut by the signs and flying glass. The full force of the gale was felt in the harbor. Several boats anchored off Staten island dragged their anchors. Late in the evening a freight barge, apparently unloaded, was blown ashore during the height of the gale in Sandy Hook bay, off the old dynamite battery. The vessel lies in a very bad position, with every sea sweeping her decks. The life savers are standing by, but are unable to board the wreck. The fate of the crew is unknown.

Owing to the high seas in the upper harbor, the ferryboats to Staten island were compelled to tie up. The battleships Maine and Missouri, which are lying in the roadstead off Tompkinsville, are riding well, but have full steam up and double anchors out.

At Bellevue hospital the storm was felt severely. One of the large elms standing on the campus was blown down and half a dozen men narrowly escaped being crushed. Later on a tent occupied by 18 tuberculosis patients was wrecked by the wind and the suffering people were exposed to the elements. They were removed to the hospital as soon as possible, although most of them were drenched to the skin.

At midnight the local weather bureau said 1.48 inches of rain and melted snow had fallen. It was predicted that the storm would be centered off the provinces tomorrow, thence passing out to sea.

PHILADELPHIA TIED UP.

Storm Seriously Interfered With Telegraphic Communication at Quaker City and Its Vicinity.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—The southern storm which began here about 5 a. m. today seriously interfered with telegraphic and telephonic communication in this vicinity. The telegraph companies report that wires are down in nearly all directions excepting to New York and Baltimore. Communication with the interior of the state is entirely cut off.

Beyond the interruption of telegraph and telephone service, the storm did little damage here. Rain, sleet and snow fell all day with a maximum wind velocity of 41 miles. Late tonight the storm continued, although the wind had fallen to 36 miles an hour.

KILLING FAMILY IS THE CHARGE

Adolph Weber Has Been Placed Under Arrest at Auburn, California.

FOUR VICTIMS OF AWFUL DEED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

AUBURN, CAL., Nov. 13.—Adolph Weber has been placed under arrest charged with the murder of his parents, sister and young brother last Thursday night, and with having set the family residence on fire afterward to conceal the crime. Weber took his arrest coolly, but was alive to what he considered to be his legal rights. The arrest took place immediately after he left the witness stand and after he had reluctantly answered the questions propounded to him by Coroner Shepard, the district attorney and several of the jurymen. A warrant for his arrest had been sworn out and after its service he asked to be allowed to read the document.

"I see it has been signed by a justice of the peace," he coolly remarked, "and a justice of the peace has no authority in law to issue a warrant to arrest me."

Sheriff Keenan said he was himself perfectly satisfied with the legality of the warrant and advised Weber to accompany him to the jail without making any unnecessary trouble or causing a scene. Weber, after carefully buttoning his coat, announced that he was ready and with little loss of time the sheriff brought him to the jail. The prison doors had scarcely closed behind him before he asked to be allowed to consult with an attorney.

SOME ELECTORS MAY HAVE HAD 500,000 MAJORITY

Returns from About 20 Pennsylvania Counties Show National Candidates Led State Ticket.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

HARRISBURG, Nov. 13.—Official returns of last Tuesday's election have already been received at the state department from 20 counties in Pennsylvania, and it is expected the remaining 47 counties will be heard from the next three days. In all the returns that have been received the national ticket was ahead of the state ticket, which is ascribed to the fact that voters marked a cross in the square at the head of the electoral column instead of the party square on the left of the ballot. Estimates give some of the Republican electors 500,000 majority, due to the manner of marking their ballots above mentioned.

Officials of the state department, by whom the form of ballot was prepared, say that more mistakes occurred in the marking of the ballot at the last election than they have ever known.

WEATHER KEPT ALL IN.

Streets Were in a Miserable Condition as a Result of the Rain, Snow and Wind.

High wind, accompanied by rain and snow, made yesterday miserable in Pittsburgh, especially for people who had to go out on the streets. The walking was wet and small pools of water were frequently met on the sidewalks throughout this section. In streets in which building operations are being conducted it was almost impossible to walk on the pavements, which were muddy and slippery.

The day was cloudy from daylight till dark, and with the sharp and penetrating atmosphere, few persons cared to remain away from the warm fireside at home for any length of time. The drizzling rain, which on several occasions during the day and evening turned to snow, also caused damp feet and the first real appearance of pneumonia weather in earnest in Pittsburgh and the surrounding territory. The local temperature fell below the normal, and for probably the first time this season heavy overcoats were met with on every hand.

High wind was responsible for a fire which occurred last night at the home of Ambrose Raphage, 172 Pius street, South Side, causing about $10 damage to the furnishings of a room. The blaze was caused by the wind blowing a lace curtain against a gas jet. The flames were extinguished by members of the household.

BENEFIT FOR COUNTRY CLUB.

Ladies of Beaver Valley to Give Concert in a Theater at Beaver Falls.

NEW BRIGHTON, Nov. 13.—(Special.)—A benefit concert for the Beaver Valley Country club is being planned by Mrs. F. S. Merrick, Mrs. W. A. Myler, Mrs. C. A. Townsend and others, to be held at the Lyceum theater, Beaver Falls, November 30. The Country club house has been open nearly a year and has established itself as the social center of the valley. The list of patronesses for the benefit will include leaders in society in the Beaver valley, and when the boxes are auctioned they are expected to bring fancy prices.

The star in the concert will be Miss Caroline Harter of Canton, O., a violinist of note. She is a niece of ex-Judge Henry Hice of Beaver and is well known here. She will bring Hans Kronold, who is said to have no rival in the United States as a cellist. Mrs. Willman of Cleveland, O., will be accompanist.

RUSSIA FACING CRISIS.

A New, Broad and Liberal Movement Is Under Headway in the Internal Affairs of the Empire.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 13.—Russia is facing a great international crisis, which, in the minds of intelligent Russians, overshadows in importance all questions relating to foreign politics. A new, broad and liberal movement seems not only under way, but gaining momentum daily; and the best feature of it is that it is entirely divorced from any radical revolutionary propaganda.

Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, the minister of the interior, has given the movement impetus, but has done so against the most powerful influences, and behind the scenes a bitter struggle is waging for imperial support. During the coming week the first test of strength is likely to occur, the result of which may mean much for the history of Russia.

HE BRINGS MESSAGE OF JAPAN'S GOOD WILL

Member of the Japanese Royal Household En Route to See Mr. Roosevelt.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Prince Fushimi, of the Japanese royal household, and special representative of the mikado, accompanied by three of his countrymen and a retinue of servants, arrived in Chicago today over the Chicago & Northwestern railway on his way to Washington to call on President Roosevelt and to visit the capitol and government offices. On arrival in Chicago the party was taken in charge by the Japanese consul, who looked after the entertainment of the visitors until tonight, when they left for the east over the Pennsylvania road.

"There is no question of national importance, nor any phase of eastern conditions that I care to discuss," said Prince Fushimi, through his interpreter. "While Japan is not at peace, we hope for a cessation of hostilities before long. My visit has no particular significance except in so far as it may serve to strengthen the friendship that exists between Japan and the United States, but this has no connection with the war in Russia."

Prince Fushimi is visiting this country by order of the emperor with a double purpose. First, to deliver the president of the United States a special message of good will from the emperor of Japan, and, second, to visit the world's fair at St. Louis, where Japan has a large exhibit.

While in Washington the president has designated Mr. Peirce, third assistant secretary of state, as his personal representative, to attend upon the prince and arrange for his entertainment. Mr. Peirce will be assisted by Col. Symons and already several functions have been planned, including a dinner at the White House, a visit to the capitol and congressional library, a luncheon by the secretary of state, a reception by the prince to the gentlemen of the diplomatic corps at the Arlington hotel, a trip to Mt. Vernon and a dinner by the Japanese legation.

From Washington the prince will go to the world's fair, where preparations for his reception are being made by the fair authorities and the Japanese commissioners. He will assume his official character only in Washington and St. Louis, and thereafter will travel incognito to New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. He may also visit several other large cities, but as he will sail from San Francisco on the Mongolia on December 28 his stay in this country is necessarily much restricted.

The prince is essentially a soldier, and has followed that profession from early boyhood, and distinguished himself in the China-Japan war of 1894 and in the early stages of the present war with Russia.

RUSSIAN SHIP STRIKES ROCK.

Gromoboi Badly Damaged at Vladivostok Which Insures Continuance of Fleets Inactivity.

TOKYO, Nov. 14.—(9 a. m.)—It is reported that the armored cruiser Gromoboi struck a rock and was severely damaged at Vladivostok. It is understood that the accident happened during a trial of the Gromoboi after repairs on her had been completed.

It is said that she returned to her berth in a sinking condition, surrounded by a fleet of smaller craft which kept her afloat and that she was redocked. If the report is true it assures the continuance of inactivity of the Vladivostok squadron.

SISTERS KILL THEMSELVES.

Decided to Die Together After Talking the Matter Over for a Week in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Locked in each other's arms, on the bare floor of a dismantled flat in East Fifty-first street, from which they had been dispossessed on Friday, two sisters, Louise and Valerie Abel, 44 and 38 years old, respectively, were found dead today. In the mouth of each was a rubber tube which connected with the chandelier.

In the hand of the younger woman was an open letter, written in German, which stated that the sisters had decided to die together after talking over the matter for a week, and requesting that they be buried in one grave.

ARE OVERTAXING THE GUN FACTORY OF NAVY

Lack of Officers for Ordnance Is Also a Serious Problem of Government.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Lack of officers for ordnance duty and the overtaxing of the naval gun factory at Washington, continue to be the two most serious problems facing the bureau of ordnance, according to the annual report of Rear Admiral Newton E. Mason, chief of ordnance, just approved by Secretary Morton. The report says a plan for reorganization of the work of the bureau will be submitted later, with a view to increasing the supply of ordnance experts. Of the rush of work at the naval gun factory, Admiral Mason says:

"The naval gun factory has been running night and day at full capacity, and although good progress has been made the congested condition of all work there gives assurance that its capacity is being overtaxed and must, unless this capacity is materially increased, eventually result in failure to supply the ordnance outfits of ships in time to meet the demands of the contractors."

Of the 128 8-inch guns required, 24 40-caliber guns for the Pennsylvania class of armored cruisers are nearly completed. The naval gun factory will make 16 of the 88 7-inch guns required, the others having been contracted for by private companies. Of the 250 6-inch, 50-caliber guns required, those for the Pennsylvania class of armored cruisers have been completed and 144 guns required for the battleships of the Virginia class and the armored cruisers of the Tennessee and St. Louis classes are being manufactured.

Armor deliveries in the year have increased and the manufacture of armor, the report says, has progressed in a satisfactory manner. There have recently been some delays to ship contractors, caused by the non-delivery of armor, but the opinion is expressed that this was due, not to belated armor deliveries, but to unusually rapid ship construction. To obviate the recurrence of this a reassignment of armor contracts has been made by the bureau. During the year 14,848.80 tons of armor have been delivered. Projectiles have recently caused the bureau difficulty, some of them failing to meet the severe ballistic tests required.

Experiments recently have been made to develop a special design of telephone for use in communicating throughout the ship while in action. The bureau also has been experimenting with a graphic method for the visual transmission of orders.

TWICE REPULSED BY THE JAPANESE

BOMBARDMENT IS FUTILE

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

TOKYO, Nov. 13.—(7 p. m.)—The Manchurian army headquarters, telegraphing today, says:

"In the direction of the left army the enemy attacked from Wuchental November 11, at 12:20 o'clock in the morning. They were repulsed. On November 9, 200 infantry and 300 cavalry appeared in the direction of Sansealton. Our force stationed there repulsed them. The Russians retreated to Machuanzu. The Russian losses were 60. Ours were six."

GEN. KUROKI'S HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 13.—(via Fusan.)—The Russian forces are still encamped north of the Shakhe river. The Russian bombardment of the Japanese lines has lessened lately. From the beginning it has accomplished surprisingly little damage, although on many days 100 big shells were fired. No Japanese were killed by the bombardment and very few were wounded.

TOKYO, Nov. 13.—A draft of the war tax measure, which the government plans to submit to the diet which is to meet here on November 28, shows a proposed increase in import duties of $750,000. Divided among a large number of articles, the increase on individual articles is small, except in the case of tobacco, glassware, beverages and kerosene. Among the articles on which it is proposed to increase the duty are objects of art, ammunition, agricultural implements, fire extinguishers, musical instruments, surgical and scientific instruments, photographic apparatus, spectacles, telephones, thermometers, confectioneries, preserves, grates, safes, stationery, inks, straw paper, syrup, felt, spirituous liquors, carriages, bicycles, pictures, alcohol spirits, chemicals, cotton, brass, copper, lead, steel, and gold and silverwares. The duties on a number of articles, exclusively of Chinese production, are increased.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The story which comes from Russia to the effect that a noted Russian war correspondent at the front confirms the report that Gen. Kuroki, the great Japanese fighter, had been killed in the battle at Liao-Yang is taken with reserve here. It is pointed out that mail advices have been received from the front since the date of his alleged death and had it been true the news would in all probability have been made public.

BATTLE WITH OUTLAWS.

One Desperado Killed and Another Mortally Wounded by Officers in Nevada.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Nov. 13.—One outlaw is dead and another is in jail mortally wounded as the result of a desperate battle between cattle thieves and officers near Neeth, Nev. Sheriff Clarke and his deputy of Elko county caught James McKelvey and Charles Winslow in the act of skinning a steer of the Graham brand. When called upon to surrender they dropped behind the carcass of the animal and began firing at the officers. The latter sought shelter and for 20 minutes a duel continued.

Finally McKelvey sprang to his feet and fired. The shot was returned and McKelvey fell dead. A few minutes later Winslow surrendered and was found to be mortally wounded.

WATSON EXPLAINS THE ELECTION

Populist Leader Says Roosevelt's Personal Popularity Gave Him Victory.

PARKER WEAKENED HIS PARTY

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Thomas E. Watson today gave out the following statement:

It should be borne in mind that at the time the Springfield convention tendered me the presidential nomination, the People's party had had no real existence as a factor in national politics for eight years. In the presidential election of 1900 it gave to its nominee only 50,000 votes. To that extent had the fusion of 1896 swallowed up a movement which in 1894 counted nearly 2,000,000 of votes and about 1,500 active newspapers, therefore we had to build from the ground up in 1904.

Mr. Roosevelt's majority over Mr. Parker was due mainly to two things, one was the immense personal popularity of Mr. Roosevelt himself, and the other was immense unpopularity of Mr. Cleveland's second administration. Unfortunately for Mr. Parker he became so completely identified with the marauders who plundered the government during Mr. Cleveland's second administration that he had to bear all the odium which they had incurred.

The people have never had a chance to show just what they thought of that second administration. Mr. Bryan's two campaigns did not give them the opportunity; it was only when the old Cleveland combination secured the defeat of Bryan and Hearst and dictated the nomination of Mr. Parker that the masses got the opportunity to vent upon a national candidate the intense hatred which they had been nursing for years against such men as Olney and Belmont and Carlisle and Cleveland himself.

By the time the next presidential election rolls around there is every reason to believe that there will be a sufficient sentiment in favor of the reform principles which are embodied in the national platform of the People's Party to win success at the polls. It all depends upon the work which is done in the years between now and then. I expect to do my share of it, that is all I can say at present. I will, however, repeat that I have not purchased or rented a home in New York, or anywhere else, and do not expect to do so. My home is in Thomson, Georgia, in a region which my ancestors settled 150 years ago, and it is there that my home will be to the end.

Am I discouraged? By no means. I began with nothing, worked three months and got half a million votes. Parker started out with 7,000,000 votes and lost some 2,000,000 in the campaign. Those who followed him are demoralized and disheartened.

Discouragement? The Democratic camp is the place where that is to be found.

(Signed) THOS. E. WATSON.

Cured of Backache.

Member of the Businss Men's League and one of the best known business men in St. Louis, Mo. Read what Mr. Wand has to say about Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure:

"I know what it is to be afflicted with backache and I sympathize with fellow sufferers. After swallowing various and frequent nauseating doses of this and that prescription I decided that if Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure could not rid me of those backaches it at least would not do me any harm and I procured a bottle.

"Now the first bottle didn't stop those wearing backaches, but it did afford me great relief. The second bottle, however, did effectually put a stop to those racking backaches. Occasionally they returned when strenuous business affairs exhausted the physical forces, but a dose or two of Dr. Fenner's Cure gave instant relief.

OFFICER KILLED IN A COLLISION

PART PLAYED BY UNLUCKY 13

Wagonman George Mason Cochran, one of the oldest members of the police force, was thrown from a patrol wagon at South Thirteenth and Carson streets, at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, as a result of a collision with car No. 475 of the Tenth and Carson street branch, and died 20 minutes later at the South Side hospital. Wagonman Albert Beebe was also slightly bruised in the accident, but the patrol wagon and street car were not damaged. Motorman M. L. Thomas of 17 Curtin street, Knoxville, was arrested, but later released on bail to await the coroner's inquest.

The wagon was driven by William Sheetz, who was answering a call at South Eighth and Bingham street. As the wagon was passing over the eastbound tracks in Carson street the car struck the steps. The end of the wagon was pushed around and the jolt threw Cochran into the street. His head struck the curb, fracturing his skull at the base. Cochran was placed in the patrol again and driven to the hospital, where he died in 20 minutes. Wagonman Beebe received a number of bruises from the shakeup, but was able to walk to his home, 1700 Edwards alley. The wagon was not damaged.

Motorman Thomas said he tried to prevent the collision. He thought the wagon would clear the tracks before his car reached it, but Driver Sheetz slightly checked his team and the car hit the wagon.

Unlucky number 13 was interwoven with the accident. Cochran lived at 45 South Thirteenth street; he worked at the South Thirteenth street station house; the accident took place at South Thirteenth and Carson streets on the 13th day of the month.

Cochran was born in Lebanon, O., and was 65 years old. He became connected with the police force 30 years ago. For six years he was off the force, leaving him 24 years of actual service. It was his intention to serve another year, which would entitle him to retire on a pension.

To the middle-aged residents of the South Side the death of Cochran will be learned of with regret. Years ago, when trolley cars were new to Pittsburgh he guarded the crossing at South Tenth and Carson streets at the dismissal hours of the Bedford public school. From the pupils, who knew him as "Mace," he was the daily recipient of happy smiles and rosy cheeked apples, for he was the unbiased arbitrator of all youthful disputes, as well as guardian of the peace.

Cochran met with a similar accident a few years ago. He was riding on the West End patrol wagon, when it was struck by a street car and he was thrown out and bruised. He was a civil war veteran and a member of Grand Army Post 151. Cochran received three discharges during the war and was wounded five times. He is survived by his widow, Clara; two sons, Charles P. and John C.; two brothers, Richard and Harry, and a sister, Mrs. Marion Craig of Philadelphia.

CANDIDATES RECUPERATING AFTER THE CAMPAIGN

Republican candidates at the last election and the officers of the city and county committees who worked so hard for a big Republican majority for Roosevelt and Fairbanks are taking a much needed rest. Visitors to their homes yesterday found almost every one of any prominence out of town.

Secretary Charles A. Muehlbronner of the county committee is at Cambridge Springs drinking chalybeate. Dr. A. J. Barchfeld, James Francis Burke and William H. Graham, congressmen-elect, and Congressman John Dalzell, are all away. Burke is in New York and Barchfeld is in Atlantic City, taking counsel about his proposed bill to establish a national department of health, its secretary with a seat in the president's cabinet. Congressman Dalzell went to Washington the night of election day and has not yet returned. City Chairman M. G. Leslie is still at Atlantic City, whither he went the day after the election.

It is not thought there will be many developments in the contest for the Republican nomination for controller until after the prominent politicians return to town. A good many ward chairmen and leaders are also taking a vacation after the arduous campaign, in which 125 meetings were held and as much work done in the effort to heap up a big majority, as if Allegheny were a close county, with a chance of capture by the Democrats. Daniel Ashworth is talked of as a candidate for the nomination for controller, but he has made no official announcement and is not setting up any delegates. The business interests would like a business man, but the difficulty is to find a business man who will give up his own affairs to conduct the office of controller as the $5,000 salary of that place is no inducement to the average successful business man.

PREPARE FOR UNION.

Commission of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches Will Enter Actively Upon the Proposed Church Unity.

Sub-committees of the executive commission of the western branch of the Presbyterian and Reformed church alliance will meet tomorrow morning preparatory to opening the first conference since its inception, in Grace Reformed church, in Dithridge and Bayard streets, tomorrow afternoon.

On Wednesday, at noon, the women of the church will give a banquet to members of the commission and to 50 invited ministers and laymen of the city. Wednesday night speakers will be assigned to local churches—the Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell to the East Liberty Presbyterian church; Dr. Black, to the Second United Presbyterian church of Allegheny; the Rev. Dr. Radcliffe, to Carnegie Presbyterian church; President R. M. Ferguson of Westminster college, to Carnegie United Presbyterian church; the Rev. Dr. Hubbard, to the Shady Avenue Cumberland Presbyterian church; Dr. Shick to the Reformed Church of the Ascension of Allegheny, the Rev. Dr. Clever to the Reformed church of Wilkinsburg, the Rev. Dr. Roberts to the Sixth Presbyterian church, the Rev. Dr. Graham to the Third Presbyterian church and the Rev. Dr. William G. Moorhead to the Sixth United Presbyterian church. Many other appointments will be made today. The Rev. Dr. Prugh will give a dinner party each evening to several members of the commission at his home.

The especial object of the convention is to prepare the way for action. Addresses on Tuesday night will attempt to focus the movement for organic union of several of the fragments of the denomination. A convention of accredited delegates from the several bodies of the Presbyterian church, about 26 in all, will meet in this city on November 29.

They are authorized by their several bodies to formulate a plan for co-operation and union, especially on the foreign field. The Rev. Dr. Prof. Searle of the Reformed Theological seminary at Newark, N. J., is president of this executive committee and the Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts is secretary. The action of this committee will be submitted to all general assemblies next spring.

He Was Too Curious.

Adolph Sholten, a grocer of Smiths Station, on the Castle Shannon road, was arrested last night at 9:30 at South Eleventh and Carson streets, as a suspicious character. It is said he was peering into windows in the neighborhood.

TOOK A PATIENT'S MONEY AND LEFT HIM TO DROWN

Frank Tonielli, Robbed by an Orderly in St. Joseph's Hospital, and Found in a Bath Tub Nearly Exhausted.

After being robbed by an orderly of $25, Frank Tonielli was left in a bath tub in St. Joseph's hospital, South Side, to drown. The man was found by the nurses of the institution about 40 minutes later, helpless and weak. The orderly, Steve Vasas, aged 19, of Latrobe, was arrested yesterday by Special Officer Herman Hartman at Second avenue and Try street and taken to the South Thirteenth street station house.

Tonielli was admitted to the hospital late Saturday afternoon to undergo an operation. He was turned over to Orderly Vasas to bathe. Tonielli was taken to the bath room and when the orderly disrobed him, found $25 in the patient's clothing. Placing the money in his pocket Vasas put the patient in the tub, which was partly filled with water.

Vasas left the bath room with the water running in the tub. The patient was unable to help himself and when the tub was filled Tonielli just had strength enough to hold his chin above the water. He sat in this position for 40 minutes before assistance came. Tonielli was almost exhausted and would have shortly drowned had not the nurses rescued him.

A search was made for Vasas, but he could not be found. It was learned he had taken the money and the case was reported to the police. Vasas, however, left some of his clothing at the hospital, and yesterday afternoon he sent a boy with a note to the infirmary to get them. The mother superior of the hospital notified Sergeant William McShane at the South Thirteenth street station house, who detailed a special officer to follow the boy with Vasas' clothing.

The officer shadowed the boy from the hospital to Second avenue and Try street. When the boy gave Vasas his garments, the officer placed him under arrest. Vasas had $16.50 when searched and said he spent the balance. He had been employed at the hospital for about 10 days. Vasas is known to the police.

TRAINS SNUFF OUT FOUR LIVES

ONE UNKNOWN AMONG THEM

The lives of a quartet of men were snuffed out by trains in this vicinity during the past 24 hours.

Two Scott Haven men, John Schneider and William Robinson, met instant death under the wheels of a Pittsburgh & Lake Erie train at Buena Vista late Saturday night. The men were walking along the tracks from Buena Vista to their homes when struck. Their deaths were reported to the coroner yesterday.

An unknown man about 20 years old was found dead last night on the tracks of the Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston railroad at Munhall. He had been killed by a train and there was nothing on his clothing by which he could be identified. His right thumb had been cut off and there was a scar on his left thigh. He wore a gray striped suit and cap, patent leather shoes, was about five feet eight inches tall and weighed 155 pounds.

Patrick Cavanaugh was run over by a Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston train at Clairton on Saturday night and was instantly killed. He was aged 40 and made his home at the Crucible hotel in Clairton.

The body of Frances Baird, who committed suicide by jumping off the Sixth street bridge November 3, and whose remains were identified as those of six different persons before a correct identification was secured, was sent to the home of her brother, B. H. Baird, at Corry, Pa., last night. The girl will be buried by her mother, who is the postmistress in a small place near Corry.

Alice May Frazier, aged 2 years, died at the home of her parents, 1819 Oak street, Duquesne, yesterday morning. Her death was due to scalds received last Friday when a kettle of boiling water fell on her.

Annie Holliman, aged 47, a colored woman, died suddenly Saturday at her home, 2628 Woolslair street. Death is said to have been due to asthma.

Mrs. Viola Wilcox of 19 Montgomery avenue, Allegheny, died suddenly yesterday morning from heart disease, from which she had suffered for some years. She was 40 years old.

Wilber Foster McBride, aged three months, whose parents live at Kirkwood street and Bell avenue, Carnegie, was found dead in bed at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

DEATH OF CHRIST MADE THE SUBJECT OF SERMON

The Rev. William J. Russell Discourses on It in East End Christian Church.

The Rev. William J. Russell, pastor of the East End Christian church, had for his subject last night, "What to Believe Concerning the Death of Christ." In discussing the question, "Why Did Jesus Die?" he said:

Many false theories have made this question a battlefield of religious discussion through all the Christian centuries. But out of all this conflict of thought there have come certain generally accepted conclusions as to the reason why Christ should suffer and die. Notice the following:

1. He died, as stated in the Pauline proposition, "for our sins, according to the scriptures. This doctrine is the central idea of revelation. It is taught in the first promise, "the seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head, and he shall bruise his heel." It is symbolical by the sacrifices of antediluvian times, and by those, also, of both the patriarchal and the Mosaic dispensations. To Him gave all the prophets witness that "He was bruised for our iniquities," that "the chastisement of our peace was upon Him," and that "with His stripes we are healed." John the Baptist cried, "Behold, the lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world." Christ Himself said that "as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up." And again, "I lay down My life for the sheep."

It must be evident to every reader of these scriptures, as well as to many others, that the salvation of men is connected, in some very important and vital sense, with the death of Christ. His death was so necessary that without it man could not have been saved. Had He not died He would have remained "alone," and have brought "no sons to glory."

2. Christ died to vindicate the divine government and the divine character. The argument of the apostle Paul in the third chapter of Romans is exceedingly lucid. He treats of man's justification before God, of which he mentions two methods. The first is by our own obedience to the law of God. This method of justification he proves to be impossible to man, laying it down as an incontrovertible maxim that "by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified." The other method is justification by the grace of God as a "free gift," but coming to us through the interposition of the death of Christ as our redemption price and received instrumentally by faith in Him.

But the apostle shows, moreover, that while this method of justification displays the grace and mercy of God, it also vindicates His justice. Christ is "set forth to be a propitiation," that God "might Himself be just, and the justifier of Him that hath faith in Jesus." Similar language is also used by the disciple John: "He is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

3. Christ also died to change the disposition of the sinner. In other words, man was alienated from God, and it was God's purpose to bring about a reconciliation between man and Himself. The word reconciliation is one of the great words found in the New Testament, and implies that the mission of Christ has been the means of bringing God and men into moral unity and practical fellowship, and that the work of Christ in His mission tended directly to this result.

Girls Charged With Theft.

Magistrate Negley of the East End police station yesterday held for court Emma Williams and Kate Connelly, aged about 15. The girls are charged with the larceny of a number of cloaks from Orpheus hall. It is alleged that one girl opened a window and threw the goods to her companion on the outside.

Rifled Pockets While He Slept.

Sadie Roach and Maggie Duffy of 1527 Penn avenue were locked up in No. 3 police station yesterday as suspicious persons. John Asdale complained that he had gone to bed in the house and had secreted his trousers underneath his pillow. When he awoke on searching his pockets, he missed $15 in money.

Will Celebrate 25th Anniversary.

Turtle Creek council, No. 26, Junior Order United American Mechanics, will celebrate its 25th anniversary next Friday evening in Semmen's hall, Turtle Creek. John H. Byers, Joseph Barckley, William Taylor, James Dobbie and Samuel Tudor are the committee in charge. The council has over 180 members.

BIGELOW SAYS HE WILL WIN IN SELECT TODAY

Declares the Meter Ordinances Will Pass Upper Branch Despite Opposition.

Director Bigelow said yesterday that the meter ordinances, over which a lively fight is expected, would pass select council this afternoon. To pass these measures today a three-fourths vote will be required, as it will be necessary to suspend the rules to put them through on second and third readings at one sitting. Members of the opposition dispute that Bigelow will get a three-fourths vote.

Director Bigelow said he would not be ready to introduce the contract ordinances today, although he admitted they were to go to councils at an early date. He also confirmed the statement that the building of the filtration plant is to be divided into 10 contracts, according to the plans and specifications which are already prepared and are authorized to be printed by an ordinance passed by councils at the last session. Both branches of councils hold regular sessions today.

Annual Inspection Held.

The annual inspection of Maj. A. M. Harper post, No. 181, G. A. R., of Braddock, was conducted Saturday evening in the post's headquarters by Comrade J. Lee Hurst of McKeesport. The inspection was followed by addresses, a campfire, and bean bake. The Rev. J. M. Miller, chaplain of Maj. Harper post, was selected to deliver the memorial address for comrades who have died during the present year. The memorial services will be held next Saturday evening.

Pointed Gun, But Didn't Shoot.

Fireman John Enright of No. 15 engine company, arrested three men at Penn avenue and Fifteenth street, last night, for chasing a lot of boys. One of the men, Michael Busovich, had a revolver, and although he pointed it at the boys, he did not shoot. The other two men gave their names as Peter Kercin and John Drovick.

From Street Car to Hospital.

Frank Prozek of 3048 Penn avenue, fell off a street car last night at Penn avenue and Twenty-eighth street and was hurt about the head and body. He was taken to West Penn hospital.

Will Study Abroad.

Miss Rose Prince of Mildred street, Crafton, will leave today for a year's study abroad. She will make the transatlantic trip with the Rev. and Mrs. John Boyd of Portaferry, Ireland, who have been visiting Pittsburgh relatives.

This store is ready for Christmas shoppers—completely ready. It is ready for diversified tastes. All its Christmas departments teem with suggestive gift things—inexpensive gift things or costly gift things—in whatever channel your notion runs.

At 42c a yard we are selling a regular 58c grade of lining silk, as good value in its way as the foregoing, but, of course, a better quality.

This perfection, whether it be of exquisite neatness or exquisite fineness, may best be attained by selection from a stock of linens that is replete with everything for use or adornment.

Whether your demands be for the simplest or the finest of linens, you will find our prices the lowest proportionately.

In the exchange of charges and counter charges between the Allegheny police administration and the district attorney's office, the advantage rests decidedly with the latter and the public is much gratified that it is so. The district attorney is moving, upon information received, to break up a system of graft alleged to exist in Allegheny. The police administration in that city might have done a public service assisting in this work. It chose, instead, to obstruct the efforts of the district attorney to arrive at the facts and in doing so has brought suspicion and opprobium upon itself. The public naturally wonders if the Allegheny police administration is pure, why it should object to a thorough investigation and disclosure of the whole truth about the North Side.

A judge in Newark, N. J., deals out some peculiar forms of justice which might serve to carry out the reputation of the state for its criminal procedure. The other day he had a professional beggar before him against whom complaint had been made by officers of charitable institutions and the ministers who had been victimized by her. The judge sentenced her to appear in his court every day for two and a half years and pay 10 cents each time. No stipulation is made as to how she shall gain the money and apparently abundant opportunity is left for her to continue her begging. It is said that many of his sentences lately have been made on this plan and that the culprits have in most cases disappeared. He appears honest, however, in his effort to induce offenders to reform, but he goes about it in a novel manner. If the woman had been put on probation for the same length of time the sentence would seem much more sensible.

The story coming from Moscow on the strength of a dispatch from Mukden that Gen. Kuroki was killed, shows its lack of authenticity upon its face. The event is alleged to have occurred on October 4, during the battle of Liao-Yang, and the body is reported to have been sent to Japan. It is simply impossible, had such been the case, that news of it should not have been received direct. Full mail accounts of the battle of Liao-Yang have been received and not only is there no mention of any mishap to Gen. Kuroki, but details are given excluding such possibility. Moreover, telegraphic communication with his headquarters has been continuous and if Gen. Kuroki was no more they would not thus incidentally refer to him as still living. Even supposing that for some unaccountable reason the Japanese censorship was concealing the fact, there has been plenty of time for the news to leak out through unofficial sources. The story has probably no better foundation than Russian camp rumor.

Preparations have been made for circulating a petition in Allegheny for the annexation of that city to Pittsburgh, conformably to the existing law upon the subject. It should not be difficult to obtain the signatures of the necessary one-fifth of the taxable residents to bring the matter to a vote and it can hardly be doubted that if a vote is taken the necessary majority will be recorded in favor of consolidation. The advantages of annexation are so many and so manifest that it is an impeachment of the intelligence of the citizens of Allegheny to suggest an adverse majority. The tangible advantages, such as united police administration, water supply and fire protection should secure a favorable verdict, laying aside the less tangible, but not less certain advantage of increased municipal prestige. It seems absurd that the Greater Pittsburgh has been so long delayed in the sole interest of a coterie of petty politicians and contrary to the interest of the vast majority of the population of all the cities and towns concerned. There is reason to expect, however, that this absurdity will not continue much longer.

By the election of a Republican majority in the Missouri legislature, the United States senate will lose one of its most interesting characters. A Republican will succeed Senator Francis M. Cockrell, whose term of office will expire on March 4, 1905, when he will have served continuously for 30 years. Senator Cockrell is one of the few remaining confederate brigadiers in the senate. His biographical sketch in the congressional directory is very brief and does not mention his service in the confederate cause, but he was an officer in that army, and it is said that he has a good war record. He was 70 years old October 1, last, and he succeeded Carl Schurz in the senate in 1875. Four times he has been re-elected and he would have been honored with another term beyond any doubt had he not fallen before the great Republican tidal wave. Early in the year Senator Cockrell was mentioned as a possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination, and had it not been for the general conviction that the candidate should come from the east, he might have made a good showing in the convention. One thing that was urged against him by those who feared he might prove formidable was that he is a "White House Democrat." This term means that while he was a partisan and kept in line with his party on questions of policy, yet he was not bitter and enjoyed friendly relations with the administration. In fact, he had considerable influence with the president, and was able to get many favors. There is not a man in congress who has more friends and who commands a more general respect for his lovable and gentlemanly qualities than the senior senator from Missouri.

Filtration Contracts.

The best piece of news that has come from the City hall for years is the announcement that Director Bigelow is ready to proceed with the letting of contracts for the construction of the filtration plant. This looks like business at last.

Once before the work reached a stage at which the letting of contracts began and the bids were for amounts below the estimates. The proceedings were stopped by the injunction of the United States court. Judge Buffington held that contracts could not be let until the cost of the whole work had been estimated and the funds provided. This has since been done. The people have voted an additional five millions and complete estimates have been made. The mode of issue of the bonds is a question which is now before the courts, but that does not affect the fact that the power to issue the bonds exists. There are over $2,000,000 now available and there is no reason why the work should be delayed upon questions of detail as to how the additional $5,000,000 shall be raised.

There will be plenty of time to settle such points before the money is needed. The work covers so many different features that the plans call for 10 different contracts. It is neither necessary nor desirable to let all of these at one time. While some contracts are being carried out the filtration bureau can attend to the work of supervision and the preparation of the supplementary contracts better than if everything had to be done simultaneously. The plans as prepared will assure to the people of Pittsburgh a copious supply of pure water, and whether from the standpoint of health or of business economy, no municipal betterment can compare with this in importance.

Metering the Water Supply.

The arguments which are being urged against the passage of the ordinances for beginning the work of metering the water supply lack pertinence. It is said that the work will cost millions and that provision should be made for giving it out by contract. But the pending ordinance only provides for the expenditure of $60,000 in the purchase of meters, and bids will be invited and contracts let for the supply of those meters. If it is said that the work of setting those meters ought also to be let by contract, how is it possible to prepare specifications? It is for the purpose of learning what will have to be done that the ordinance authorizing the employment of inspectors and workmen was prepared.

There are about 40,000 water connections in the present area of city water supply, and they are increasing in number at the rate of from 1,200 to 1,500 a year. In addition there are from 10,000 to 12,000 connections on the South Side that will have to be metered also. With all possible diligence the work will take at least five years to do, and will call for the setting of at least 60,000 meters. The appropriation now asked is for about 5,000 meters, so that a start can be made. When additional meters are needed appropriations will be required and such conditions as experience may suggest may be imposed.

The only way to make a practical start is to pass the pending ordinances. Such action ought to have been taken years ago. The mass of the people are paying for vast quantities of water that they do not use, and the only way to rectify this injustice is to install meters. Whatever may eventually be found advisable, the type of installation must be settled by practical tests and this will require the setting of meters by day labor under city direction. This has been the experience of every city, and attempts to compel the adoption of a different method here are purely obstructive in their practical effect.

Kansas Natural Gas.

Pennsylvania capital and energy have developed in Kansas one of the great oil and natural gas fields of the country. Kansas is a trifle over-appreciative of its good fortune and is now trying to prevent the gas operators from marketing their product beyond the confines of Kansas state lines.

The particular instance affects the company organized by T. N. Barnsdall of this city. His project was first refused incorporation in the state. When it was found that would not stop him from piping gas to Kansas City and other points in Missouri police power interference was resorted to. The men engaged in digging a trench for the pipe were placed under arrest. The case has been appealed to a higher court, but in the meantime the Kansas objectors are organizing a campaign with the purpose of having the Kansas legislature pass a law forbidding the piping of gas from the state.

It may well be doubted that the Kansas legislature can be persuaded to pass any such act, though Kansas legislatures in the past have been guilty of many absurd things. Some years ago this same proposition was mooted in West Virginia to prevent the piping of gas from that state to Pittsburgh. Nothing came of it because members of the legislature refused to support the measure. Had it been otherwise the question of the power of states to place such restrictions upon enterprise would have been tested ere this. In the absence of decisions, however, there is reason to believe that an act of this kind would not stand.

The Constitution prohibits any interference with commerce between the states. The piping and sale of natural gas may be fairly construed to be commerce. Transportation by pipe lines has become quite as regular as by railroad. Already there has been a decision that natural gas is a commodity on which customs duties may be collected. This decision was rendered in the Buffalo case when it was proposed to pipe gas into this country from Canada. If, then, it is a commodity, it is entitled to all the privileges of interstate commerce. There is small hope that Kansas can prevent the shipment of gas out of the state, and it will be a good thing for Kansas if it cannot.

Cabinet Changes.

When the four years' term of a president expires it is customary for the members of his cabinet to present their resignations so that he may not be embarrassed if he decides to make changes in any of the departments. As soon as President Roosevelt's election was announced gossip was started as to the number who would be likely to withdraw, but the first authoritative announcement is that Secretary Hay is to remain at the council board. Of the other older members it is expected that Secretary Wilson of the board of agriculture will keep his place, but Secretary Shaw's plans in the treasury department are not revealed. There will be a new appointment in the interior department, for Secretary Hitchcock has announced his intention of retiring.

The retention of Secretary Hay is extremely gratifying. In his dealings with foreign nations Secretary Hay has made the office particularly efficient and his name is associated with some of the most important diplomatic achievements of the day. This prominence afforded him is partly due to the attitude of the United States, which has become a factor in international politics, but had the administration of the office been conducted by a man with less tact and firmness this country might have lost in prestige rather than achieved the triumphs with which she is credited.

The office of secretary of state is one of great importance, for the incumbent stands next to the vice president in line of succession, and during Mr. Roosevelt's term Mr. Hay really stood next to him, as there was no vice president. While the dignity of the place has been recognized by former presidents, it has generally been given to a leader in the party who might have been an unsuccessful rival with the president for the first place. Now it is in the hands of an unpretentious statesman whose fitness for its duties was even questioned when the appointment was made. But his peculiar adaptation to the office has seemed to afford the opportunity of making the place more permanent so that certain policies may be carried out by the same man.

Clarion County Redeemed.

Among the many Republican victories of last Tuesday none is more gratifying than that in Clarion county, which resulted in the defeat of John A. F. Hoy for re-election to the legislature. The Clarion county voters showed their good intentions in other ways, such as giving a majority for W. O. Smith for congress, and others on the Republican ticket, but the bright particular achievement was the retirement of Hoy. One of the Republican candidates for assembly unfortunately withdrew from the ticket early in the canvass, under the impression that he had no chance of election, but Dr. Walker stuck to his guns and won the prize. Hoy ran behind his colleague on the Democratic ticket and so was selected for the victim of one of Clarion's rare departures from the Democratic path. He deserved to be thus selected. His record was unsatisfactory. The connection of his name with the normal school appropriation scandal was his death blow.

This is the second time in its history that Clarion county can be said to have gone Republican since the organization of that party. The other time was in 1875. That was the zenith of the development of the petroleum resources in the county. There was only a county ticket to elect and more than half of the successful candidates were Republicans. The Democratic tidal wave of 1876 swept the county back into the Democratic ranks and in 1878 the hegira to McKean county had set in that carried the Republican voters away. Since then Clarion has been regarded as hopeless until the present victory shows that good may come out of the most unlikely places. It is now the duty of Clarion Republicans to see that their county does not again lapse into the ways of darkness.

THE HUMOROUS SIDE OF LIFE.

Effect of the Compromise.

The old man was giving his son some fatherly advice as to how he should treat his young wife, to whom he was recently married.

"When you have any little differences of opinion, my son," he said, "if you can't persuade Margaret that you are right—and you probably can't—you must compromise. Be firm, but be considerate and compromise."

"Yes, father," said the son respectfully.

"I well remember a little experience," remarked the old man reminiscently, "on the very threshold of the married life of your mother and myself, which was the basis of all future disputes. I wanted to spend the summer—our first vacation—in Maine, and your mother wanted to go to Saratoga. That is 30 years ago. But I well remember how firm and yet how considerate I was and how we compromised."

"How did you settle it, father?"

"Well, we stayed from Friday night to Monday morning at Bar Harbor, and spent the rest of the summer at the up-state spa."—Town Topics.

Why One Brother Remained Outside.

William E. Mason, who recently returned from a western trip, is telling a story about two country merchants he met during his travels. The men were brothers, well along in years, and among the most prosperous citizens of their county. One of the brothers was moved not long ago to believe that he should join the church.

Neither had ever paid attention to religious affairs, but a stirring evangelist had finally aroused the elder man to feel that the church was where he belonged. He endeavored to persuade his brother to join the church with him, but whenever the subject was mentioned the brother always waived the subject and would not discuss the matter. Finally, the elder brother said one day: "John, why don't you join the church if I do?" "Well, Bill, I might as well tell you. You go ahead and join the church, but if I join it, too, who's going to weigh the wool?"—Chicago Chronicle.

The Well-to-Do Brother.

Frank Ver Beck, the illustrator, has a brother who is a very successful business man. Among a party of visitors to Mr. Ver Beck's studio one day recently was a lady who met him for the first time. In the course of the conversation one of the callers made a reference to this brother.

"Some friends of mine," observed the lady, "know your brother. I believe he is very well-to-do, is he not?"

"On the contrary," replied Mr. Ver Beck sadly, "he is very hard to do. I asked him to lend me $5 last week, and he had the impertinence to say that when I returned the five I borrowed last summer perhaps he would think about letting me have this one."—Saturday Evening Post.

Not Difficult for the Little Girl.

Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott tells of a conversation that once took place in a friend's house in Boston in which there were discussed certain phenomena of the mind. Some one observed that it was a curious fact that no man could do one thing and think of another.

During the discussion a little girl of 10, the daughter of the host, was listening attentively.

"I can do one thing and think of another," she said.

"What is it?" asker her father.

"Well," she said, "it is very easy for me to say the Lord's prayer and think of almost anything else I want to. I do it every night."—Harper's Weekly.

He Refused to Be Worried.

Mrs. C. one morning last week thought she smelled gas. Bravery came to her mysteriously and she crept downstairs to investigate. After smelling about for some minutes she rushed upstairs, called Mr. C., then shook him, and at last aroused him. Then this was heard:

"John, there's a leak in the gas pipe in the kitchen. We'll all die if it is not fixed."

Leaks had been heard of before, and Mr. C. sleepily asked:

"Is it a-leaking much now?"

"Not much!" screamed his wife, and then, as Mr. C. turned over, this soothing advice was given:

"Put a bucket under it and come to bed."—Birmingham Post.

Had No Faith in the Automobile.

An action for damages alleged to have been received in an automobile accident was recently brought in an adjoining county. A woman had been thrown from a carriage, the horse attached to which being frightened by an automobile.

She landed in a ditch and was not dangerously injured. Upon being assisted to her feet, it is related, someone spoke of calling a doctor and suggested a physician who visits his patients in an automobile. The injured woman protested, saying: "No; don't call him. I don't want an automobile doctor. Get me a horse doctor."—Utica Observer.

Kind of Music Government Had.

A certain congressman who takes an interest in musical matters lately presented a bill advocating a larger appropriation for the care of the music in the congressional library. He spoke briefly on the subject, and after the session a fellow congressman approached him confidentially.

"I say," he said in a low voice, "I like that bill of yours; but tell me—what sort of music does the government have over there in the library—is it a band or just a hand organ?"—Harper's Weekly.

"Yes, sir, he was the laziest man on record. What do you reckon he did when his house was on fire?"

"Dunno."

Why She Went to Church.

The late Rev. William Douglas Parish once congratulated an old lady on her bravery in fighting her way to church against a terrible tempest, but received this disconcerting reply: "My husband gets so cross-grained after meals that I have to get out of his way, so I might as well go to church."—Westminster Gazette.

Remembers Pittsburgh 93 Years Ago.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

Sir—Seeing my name in your columns of November 9, I was reminded that in October, 1811, 93 years ago, when I was in my fifth year, I was in your city, where my father stayed over night with his family on their journey to Kingsville, Ashtabula county, Ohio. In the morning I walked with him along a road by the side of a stream or raceway and saw a machine for pulling cloth, and for the first and last time till I was in my twentieth year, heard a factory or a church bell. If there is a person living that can remember being in Pittsburgh longer ago than that I would like to correspond with him or her. I was born September 4, 1807, in Colebrook, Conn. Yours sincerely,

WM. C. PHELPS.

New Swindle Practiced.

A sharper worked a new game on a Wickboro lady the other day, in which he succeeded in getting a small sum of money. He called at the home of Mrs. Margaret Schrecengost and stated that he was about to buy the vacant lot adjoining her property, but on leaving home he had forgotten his tape measure and pocketbook. He asked her if she could loan him a tape measure, and when told that she could not, he very cleverly persuaded her to loan him $2.25 with which to buy one. He then told her that if his wife should visit the property while he was after the tape measure to have her remain until his return. He then disappeared and Mrs. Schrecengost has seen nothing of him or the $2.25 since, and of course it is not likely that she ever will.—Kittanning Free Press.

Trade Marks in China.

The trade mark question has long been a live issue in China. Foreign merchants have suffered much loss through imitations and frauds, and Chinese officials have been given unceasing trouble by the complaints of the merchants. Both classes will feel distinct relief now that a full code of trade mark regulations has been adopted by the Chinese government, acting on the advice of Minister Conger and other members of the diplomatic corps.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

Why has love not come into my life?
Am I born not to be loved at all?
My heart's desire is to be a true man's wife;
But every faint hope seems doomed to fall.
I've led a life which I thought would show
A past my husband could proudly know.
Virtue and honor have held a place
Which I've fought hard to not disgrace,
And now I've passed life's first fresh bloom,
My years have numbered twenty and five,
With no sign yet of a prospective bridegroom;
I think I'd rather be dead than alive.
—Anon in The Gazette, February, 1904.

Woman! cease thou this craving for a thing impossible;
Thou hast thyself sealed thine own fate,
To live a life childless and unblest.
When in thy youth the passions mad thy breast upheaved,
The goddess mother claimed thee for her own.
Thou clung instead to what thou call'st virtue and honor
And the precious gift refused of woman's highest office—Motherhood!

O, fruitless woman! thou shalt wither and perish,
And for thy tombstone I will give thee vanity.
Thy woman's heart can well define what here I mean,
Thou loved thyself and put aside a husband's love when in thy prime.

When thou wert young thou hadst the choice
Of being mother, or forever being maid.
You chose the latter, for the former would thy beauty spoil,
And canst thou now revile at me
For giving what thy fancy most desired?
—LLEWELLYN.

Buffalo, N. Y., November, 1904.

The wail of the hapless woman who would be a wife but not a mother is often pitiful, yet rarely does it excite sympathy from those who take broader and better views of life.

Wife and mother were so closely allied in olden times that they were rarely found separate. But the charm of motherhood was much stronger then than now, probably owing to the education and training of the modern woman.

Then the childless wife thought herself accursed of God, and her life was miserable beyond description.

Next to the childless wife in point of sorrow and misery stood the mature woman who was yet a maid, for women then believed their mission on earth was to become wives and mothers, and their highest ambition was to become the mothers of men.

Men were then strong and virile, and women healthy and hardy. Delicate, fragile women were not accounted to be worth while cultivating. And if any failed of getting husbands it was these same weaklings, for it was contended that they were not fit to become mothers of men lest they might bring forth weak men. Strong men were then in demand.

What say you? Do not our times demand strong men? And don't you know that men resemble their mothers more than their fathers?

* * * * *

It were better for the world if all weak, defective, fragile women should resolve not to marry. Or if they must marry then let them marry weak, defective men, so that their tribe may rapidly grow less, as it surely will, for nature has a summary way of disposing of weaklings if allowed full sway.

You might say that it would be cruel, if not inhuman, to cross bad blood with bad, and thus produces physical degenerates. But not nearly as cruel and inhuman as to cross bad blood with good, thereby tainting good blood without removing the taint from that which is already bad.

Physical degeneration leading ultimately to the extinction of the degenerate would be a blessing to the world and much less reprehensible than maintaining a degenerate class.

Degenerate men and women are not profitable to society, nor to the world at large, for they decrease the sum of human force, and by that much retard the accomplishment of the great things which this world is yet to see.

May we not conclude, therefore, that those who would not be mothers should not be? This conclusion is further warranted by the well established fact that undesired and unwelcome offspring is almost invariably below the average in quality, both of brain and brawn.

Love-children, it is said, rule the world.

* * * * *

That it is possible to improve the race mentally, physically and morally by properly mating the sexes is conceded by all who have given the matter serious attention. Indeed, it is being demonstrated on every hand; besides it has been proved experimentally, so that there can be no reasonable doubt of the truth of the proposition that it is possible to greatly imprve the quality of the race.

If it is possible to make men and women better than they are at present, is it not a duty to do it—a duty owed to God as well as to the race?

And what say you, is not a duty neglected a sin? And this being a great duty is it not a great sin to neglect it?

Besides, domestic happiness mainly depends on the proper mating of those who marry. Mismating is the prime cause of the failure of marriage.

Then why not teach this great fact from the pulpit instead of preaching against divorce?

If divorce is the terrible thing that it is held to be, why not remove the prime cause of it, thereby doing away with the offense?

And again, if divorce is sinful is it not equally sinful on the part of preachers and teachers and parents to permit the causes leading to it to continue, and that without an effort to correct them?

As you very well know, pastors and teachers and neighbors generally unite in urging marriages, and that without any regard for the fitness of the parties one for the other. Everybody seems to want them to marry just for the fun they may get out of a wedding.

Mr. Quiet Observer:—Your recent article on school teachers was capital. Now what is your honest opinion of telephone girls for wives?

W. J. H.

The telephone girl is all right. Of course she is. Just because she hellos from morning till night is no sign that she talks too much or is nebby or gossipy.

The telephone girl doesn't sit day in and day out with a receiver bound to her ear by a steel band merely for her health, or for amusement. It is business, but not to her liking, be sure of that, for it is much more onerous and tiresome than would be keeping house for a man whom she loved, even if she didn't get as much a week as she makes as a hello girl.

However, it will depend largely on the fitness of the match whether she is happier married than she is single, for no one can be happily married who is not happily mated.

This is no joke, but a great truth resting upon a great law of nature. Therefore, she should look well to the man who asks her hand in marriage, and be sure, very sure, that he is the man for her.

Too often girls who have to support themselves think that almost any sort of a home, with any sort of a man, is better than working every day in order to live.

This is a most dangerous thought, and it should be banished from the mind before it gets rooted in the heart.

But the telephone girl is all right for the right man. Ah! there's the rub—the right man.

An Incident in India

Other Foreign Notes.

The British government has learned by long experience how to deal with the individual races which she has brought under her rule, and the following incident illustrates some of the problems she encounters. A less experienced force might have stirred up an insurrection in this case by sudden, unthinking action, but the customs and prejudices of the tribe were respected and serious trouble avoided. This is the story as related in the London Times:

"Details respecting the murder of Capt. J. B. Bowring, political agent at Wana, by a Ghazi, were officially communicated to his brother, Mr. Bowring of the Mysore service early in the month, and have been made public in India. At 4 o'clock on the morning of September 20 the post at Wana was aroused by the receipt of an urgent wire from Sarawakai stating that Capt. Bowring had been killed and the murderer was holding up the post from the highest part of the keep. Three officers, Maj. Jacob, Lieut. Simpson and Capt. Cox, of the Indian Medical service, left as quickly as possible, and after five hours' riding reached the neighborhood of Sarawakai, where they met the mounted infantry patrol, who took them a long way round to prevent the murderer from shooting at them. They eventually got into the fort, and Capt. Cox made an examination of the body. The unfortunate officer, who was the only Englishman at Sarawakai at the time, had a wound at the top of the right shoulder and a bigger wound in the small of the back where the bullet emerged. Death must have been instantaneous, and the expression on the deceased's face showed that he was sleeping at the time. The assassin was a youth named Rabul, of the Abdurraham Khel Mahsuds, of about 16 years of age, who stated, after capture, that he had been watching his opportunity for three nights, having been angered by noticing that Capt. Bowring's bed was so placed on the roof of his quarters that he slept with his feet toward the west, in the direction of Mecca. He reached the sleeping officer by creeping up a ladder, and after committing the fanatical deed he ran up to the top of the keep, shouting 'I have done ghaza, I have killed the Zillah Sahib,' and at the same time firing shots to warn off anyone coming near him. The native hospital assistant, on being aroused, was anxious to visit the body of his chief, and was only prevented from doing so by a peremptory order from the native commandant of the post, for the murderer shot at everyone who attempted to go near the corpse. At last he permitted four of his own class, unarmed, to take away the body; and the men detailed for this duty have been promoted and rewarded for the risk they incurred. The murderer then proceeded to shoot at anyone showing himself, for he was supplied with 80 rounds of ammunition, and so secure was his position that he prevented the whole garrison from obtaining food and water. On arrival from Wana, Maj. Jacob told the members of the youth's clan that if they could not secure him he should blow up the keep or get the rest of the garrison to kill the murderer. In view of these threats Rabul consented to come down and be shot at by his own clan, provided his body was sent for burial to his own country. He then exposed himself, but the shots first fired missed him. Ultimately he was shot in both thighs and captured. The native officer of the post was the fanatic's uncle, and he and the clan were greatly mortified at the sad occurrence. It was deemed inadvisable for members of the garrison not belonging to the clan to interfere, as this might have led to blood feuds. The body of Capt. Bowring was conveyed to Dera Ismail Khan under escort for interment."

The American proposition for another peace conference at The Hague is attracting marked attention in France, the newspapers declaring that the election of President Roosevelt gives it additional significance. France's response has not been made, but the officials say the general principle of the meeting is acceptable, although it will take some time to consider what questions shall be brought up. Foreign Minister Delcasse's conference with Ambassador Porter showed that the minister was most sympathetic regarding the proposition, which he considered to be in the line of France's policy of establishing understandings and making arbitration treaties.

Great Britain and Mexico have already indicated their willingness to participate in another peace conference, so that the announcement of Denmark's intention to do so will make three of the nations enrolled in favor of President Roosevelt's proposition. Mexico and Great Britain, however, have accepted only in principle, leaving the questions of the date of the meeting and the program open. The arbitration treaty with Denmark will follow the lines of those already signed with France and other countries. A similar treaty with Switzerland awaits the signature of the contracting parties.

Regarding the letter from C. F. Gammon, who writes from Pekin predicting another Boxer uprising in China, the Rev. Dr. John Fox, one of the secretaries of the American Bible society, says he has received advices from the representatives of the society in the Far East bearing out the alarming reports regarding conditions in China, but he was inclined to hope that the authorities would be able to suppress any disorder before it reached a serious stage. Mr. Gammon was in China at the time of the Boxer outbreak in 1900. He was then stationed at Tien-Tsin, and took a prominent part in the defense made by the Europeans and Americans there against the attacks of the natives. Reports recently as to the situation in China have been of a very alarming character. Mr. Gammon's statement regarding the activity of the anti-foreign societies in Shan-Tung corroborates a dispatch from Shanghai six weeks ago which said that in Shan-Tung the Shotuan (I-Ho-Chuan?) Boxers were openly distributing prospectuses couched in the same language as those circulated before the uprising of 1900, calling for the extermination of all foreigners. It was in Shan-Tung that the outbreak began in 1900.

London is anxious—intensely anxious—to know whether the grim figure of destitution that has already cast its shadow over the poor of the metropolis, is this winter to lay its heavy hand more heavily than in other years upon those who hover on the brink of abject poverty. Inquiries made by a representative of the Pall Mall Gazette have resulted in proving that while work is more scarce than in many previous years, there is no fear among those who are in daily and hourly touch with the poorest of London's poor that the organizations at present in existence will not be able to deal with any emergency that may arise. Even the fact that during the past month the number of applications for employment made at the offices of a leading labor bureau have exceeded by about 80 per cent the applications made in the corresponding period of last year has been viewed with no feeling of alarm.

PEACE SOCIETY FOR PITTSBURGH

Dr. Levy Has Gone to New York to Confer With Andrew Carnegie.

PROSPECTS ARE VERY BRIGHT

A peace society, to be fostered by Andrew Carnegie, is likely to be established in Pittsburgh. The Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy, rabbi of the congregation of Rodeph Shalom in Eighth street, went to New York to consult with Mr. Carnegie today. Upon Mr. Levy's return later in the week a meeting of the friends of international peace will hold a meeting in the rooms of the chamber of commerce.

The organization will be made permanent and will number among its members some of the most prominent people of the city. This step is the direct result of the peace meeting held in Pittsburgh at the time of the interparliamentary congress in Boston several weeks ago. At that time Mr. Carnegie manifested a deep interest in the work and did not lose sight of the smaller meeting here. Neither did he lose sight of the fact that the local gathering was another indorsement of his encouraging offer to The Hague.

Those who had taken a leading part in the peace meeting took up the matter of forming a permanent society. Mr. Carnegie expressed himself as pleased with the outlook. Finally Dr. Levy made an appointment for a conference with the steel king, and Dr. Samuel B. McCormick, chancellor of the Western university, decided to call a meeting of those who will become the founders of the new society, as soon as Mr. Carnegie's answer shall be received.

Dr. Levy left for New York at 10 o'clock last night. He will meet Mr. Carnegie at 5 o'clock this afternoon. On the eve of leaving for the east, Dr. Levy said:

"We feel more than encouraged by the interest Mr. Carnegie has shown. Anything he will say doubtless will be instrumental in uniting the friends of peace in Pittsburgh and will lead to the formation of a strong society. I am going to meet him and to talk over the situation. I do not know what suggestion Mr. Carnegie might have to offer. The plans for our next meeting are immature, but through the kindness of the chamber of commerce we have been granted the use of its rooms, and there a meeting probably will be held this week."

GREAT INCREASE IN THE USE OF SUGAR

Much Larger Consumption in the United States During the Past Year.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 13.

The sugar consumption of the United States in the current year seems likely to exceed that of any previous year, both in quantity and per capita. The total quantity of sugar brought into the United States in the nine months ending with September, 1904, is 4,250,000,000 pounds, against 3,750,000,000 pounds in 1903, the high record importation of sugar in the corresponding period in earlier years. Of this enormous quantity of sugar brought into the United States during the nine months practically one-fourth came from the non-contiguous territory of the United States—Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands; more than one-half came from Cuba, and the remainder chiefly from other islands of the East and West Indies.

The reports issued by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, covering the imports of the nine months ending with September, 1904, show that the total quantity of sugar brought into the United States from various parts of the world was 4,260,506,039 pounds, against 3,764,929,688 pounds in the corresponding period of 1903 and 3,791,492,579 pounds in the corresponding months of 1901, the high record years in earlier importations. Of this grand total of 4,250,000,000 pounds of sugar brought into the United States during the nine months of the present year, 687,911,928 pounds was from the Hawaiian islands, 266,175,443 pounds from Porto Rico and 24,201,588 pounds from the Philippine islands. From Cuba the total for the nine-months' period was 2,527,132,559 pounds, against 1,854,420,177 pounds in the corresponding months of 1903, and 1,338,911,829 pounds in the corresponding months of 1902. From the British West Indies the total was 80,394,246 pounds; from other West Indies and Bermuda, 107,068,642 pounds; from the East Indies other than the Philippine islands, 259,774,777 pounds, and from South America, 62,080,056 pounds. All of the above is cane sugar. In addition to this there was 225,211,168 pounds of beet sugar, which came chiefly from Germany, and with it a small quantity from Belgium and a still smaller quantity from Austria-Hungary. This total for the nine months ending with September, 1904—4,266,506,799 pounds—exceeds by more than 500,000,000 pounds the total for the corresponding period of any earlier year.

The value of the sugar brought into the United States during the nine months ending with September, 1904, is $101,116,717, of which $82,223,075 was from the island territories of the United States, $23,139,212 being from Hawaii, $9,083,563 from Porto Rico and $342,440 from the Philippine islands.

One especially interesting fact shown by a study of the figures of the imports of sugar is that the second largest importation (omitting from the consideration the sugar brought from the non-contiguous territories of the United States) was from the East Indies, chiefly Java, the largest being, as already indicated, Cuba. The total imports of sugar into the United States under the title of "East Indies" during the nine months ending with September, 1904, amounted to 259,774,777 pounds, valued at $4,319,463, and this is chiefly from Java. The imports of sugar into the United States from the Dutch East Indies have increased very greatly during recent years, the total in the fiscal year 1893 being 182,492,432 pounds, and in the fiscal year 1903, 891,758,090 pounds.

TAUNTS OF STUDENTS RESULTED IN SHOOTING

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

MADISON, WIS., Nov. 13.—Exasperated by the taunts of his fellow students, and fearing that he would be given a ducking in the icy waters of Lake Mendota for making slurring remarks about the Badger football eleven, W. R. Mason of Brookline, Mass., last night, it is alleged, shot A. E. Grunert in one of the student boarding houses here. The bullet took effect in the instep of the left foot and caused great pain. The bullet was probed for in the City hospital and extracted.

It is probable that Mason will be asked to leave the institution. It is also probable that several of the men implicated in the hazing will be suspended, as the faculty has put its foot down upon all hazing.

Chief of Police Baker says that no action will be taken by the police unless complaint is made.

LAST WORK DONE IN GIRARD PLANT

FAILURE TO SETTLE A SCALE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 13.—The last work was done at the Girard plant of the American Steel Hoop Company yesterday and the eight-inch mill was taken down preparatory to being shipped to Pittsburgh. This is on account of the fact that the company could not operate the mill economically and keep the men inside the mill. All the workers were brought to this city and placed in the Upper and Lower plants.

It is semi-officially announced that the seven-inch mill of the Lower plant will be started tomorrow, making the last of the finishing mills to go on. When the men quit work last July this is one of the mills whose rolls were taken down and the men boasted that the company would not be able to start it.

It is evident that the men propose to call off the strike within a short time. They have given up all hope of effecting a settlement. This week 200 men will leave for Madison, Ill., to enter the employ of the American Car and Foundry Company. This will leave comparatively few men here without work. Two of the leading rollers have been supplied with places at Pittsburgh by President Shaffer and another roller will be in the party to go to Illinois.

The effort made yesterday by representatives of the Amalgamated association and the Republic Iron and Steel Company to secure an adjustment on the special scale for the 18-inch mill of the Brown-Bonnell plant, failed of results. Another conference will be held next week.

James A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown Iron, Sheet and Tube Company, announced tonight that the plant would be run to its fullest capacity, beginning Monday.

WILL CELEBRATE VICTORY.

Sharpsburg Republicans Have Arranged for Big Jollification.

Preparations have been completed for the big Republican demonstration to be held in Sharpsburg this evening, to celebrate last week's victory. Three brass bands, hundreds of citizens and a number of carriages, floats, and wagons, will be in line. Dr. G. A. Kelly of Sharpsburg will act as chief marshal and the borough council will ride in carriages. Company F, Fourth regiment, Sons of Veterans Reserves, will act as an escort.

A feature of the parade will be a battalion of newsboys carrying transparencies and led by a brass band. This section of the parade will be in charge of Howard Williams of the Sharpsburg News Company. John H. Young and William C. Tibby, representing the local Republican committee, have arranged the demonstration.

ELECTION IN FRANCE WILL PROMOTE PEACE

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, heretofore a member of the chamber of deputies, was today elected a senator for Sarthe to succeed M. Leguedue, deceased. Americans here are much pleased with the election of the baron, owing to his prominence in the movement for strengthening the ties between the United States and France. Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, in thanking the electors, declared that his election was a striking approbation of the new policy of union and peace promoted by mutual concession between European nations.

JORDON WANTS TO BORROW THE CORAOPLIS LOCKUP

Because of inadequate facilities for taking care of prisoners, warrants sworn out before Justice J. J. Jordan of Carnot are being held up. Hallowe'en night a crowd of young boys had a wildwest lark and many indignant residents were made the victims of the boys, who lassoed them in the streets. Informations have been sworn out against 10 of the boys by Jordan's daughter. Jordan has applied to Justice C. H. Stevenson of Coraopolis for the use of that borough's lockup, but the latter hesitates, as he views the boys' doings as a joke.

Steamship Rate War Ended.

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—The rate war between the transatlantic steamship companies over the third-class rates originating with the Cunard company's invasion of Hungarian territory, is now a thing of the past, a two days' conference at which all the leading companies were represented, having resulted in a treaty of peace.

WILL MAKE NO CALL ON BANKS

Secretary Shaw Denies Government Depositories Will Be Asked for Loan.

NO PRESENT NEED FOR MONEY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—In view of the published statement that Secretary of the Treasury Shaw would make a call on government depositories for a loan of $20,000,000, it can be positively stated tonight that no such call in the immediate future is contemplated. There is at the present time, it was said, no pressing need for such a call. Should it be made at all the probabilities are that it will be some time during the month of January.

Secretary Shaw, when seen tonight, said he had heard from several quarters that he proposed issuing the call, but it may be stated on authority that the call will not be issued until January, and maybe not then, unless some reason develops for its issuance sooner, which at the present time is not felt to be the case.

"It's a Laundry, Not a Sawmill."

The Tale of a Shirt and an Orchestra Leader

The following item appeared in a New York paper,

"Vigna, the gifted leader of the Metropolitan Opera House orchestra, declared he was obliged to send his shirts to Italy to have them properly laundered. Shirts coming from an American laundry, he asserted, had a porcelain finish that no one but a rounder ought to wear. Properly laundered they should be unglazed—a pure, dull, clean white.

Our domestic finish is a hobby with us and some friend should tell Vigna to send his shirts to a laundry, not to a Sawmill.

CELEBRATED 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Local Y. M. C. A. Holds Fitting Services to Mark Half Century of Effort.

HON. J. H. ECKELS SPOKE

Three special services yesterday marked the close of the first half-century of Young Men's Christian association work in Pittsburgh on the occasion of the golden anniversary of the inception of that organization in this city.

In the morning the auditorium of the Shadyside Presbyterian church, Amberson avenue, was filled with a large and interested gathering, who heard addresses from two of the founders of association work in Pittsburgh, the Rev. Dr. Samuel T. Lowrie, now of Philadelphia, and the Rev. Dr. Matthew B. Riddle of the Western Theological seminary. Other addresses were made by Oliver McClintock, who presided, and the Hon. H. Kirke Porter. Music was furnished by the church choir.

Dr. Lowrie, the first speaker, is the son of Matthew B. Lowrie, now deceased, who was the mayor of Pittsburgh for the term beginning in 1830. He said he was proud of the fact that he was one of the founders of the noble association, which was begun on a small scale in 1854 and which had done so much good and had grown so wonderfully. It was one of the greatest pleasures of his life, he said, to know that he was one of the founders of the great organization. He told some interesting history of the early work of the association, saying that after the formation of the organization, printed matter was immediately distributed, which did much good. In 1857 a German branch was formed, which today has followers among other nationalities.

Original Arbitration Committee.

In 1858 the board of managers appointed an arbitration committee of three members, which served for the purpose of settling disputes among members in a Christian way. This form has taken such a great hold, the speaker said, that today it is being used by the powers of the world in settling difficulties. In 1859 an Allegheny branch was opened and a year later a railroad branch. Today there are branches in all the large cities and in the army and navy of the United States.

The Rev. Matthew Brown Riddle, a descendant of the famous John Brown, who was killed during the persecution of the Scotch, said he was highly honored to be present as a speaker, as he was the first to speak at the organization of the association. He spoke of the good that had been derived from it, particularly at the Western Theological seminary, where several of the charter members were students in 1854. He quoted President Roosevelt, who said that no organization could be successful until its purpose was known and that this purpose should then be carried through. The purpose of the Y. M. C. A. is known, he said, and now the members should be loyal to the organization.

H. Kirke Porter's Remarks.

Congressman H. Kirke Porter said that while he was not one of the founders, he was proud to be among some of them. He spoke of the success of the association, saying that of many gifts of money presented in 1884, one being $20,000, the principal still remained, only the interest of the money being used.

Oliver McClintock, who presided, said the Y. M. C. A. had proved an efficient adjunct to the church, reaching people which the church could not.

A collection for the current expenses of the association was taken up. In addition to the membership fees, $11,000 is needed and it was hoped that this amount could be raised.

As yesterday marked the thirty-eighth anniversary of the formation of the present organization as well as the fiftieth anniversary of the original association, present President William T. Lyon took the occasion to read his annual report. He spoke fully on the early efforts and noble purposes of the organization and reviewed the work of the association since its formation. He dwelt upon the enlargement of the field with the growth of the association, its educational courses, entertainments and physical culture as well as moral advantages. The expenses of the past year, $26,000, were the largest in the history of the organization, but the results were most benefiting. Of 446 contributions received 210 came from the members themselves, while but five bequests had been made to the association since 1866. These were as follows:

Some Important Bequests.

William Thaw	$8,000 00
Capt. Richard C. Gray	5,121 00
Julius D. Bernd	237 50
Henry Jorden	200 00
Hon. Felix R. Brunot	9,525 00
	$23,083 50

This total is invested by the board of trustees and the income applied to the purposes of the association.

President Lyon then reviewed the work of the branch organizations and deplored the fact that because of no home of its own and without a proper place offered for rental the South Side branch was compelled to suspend, although its support had been most encouraging. He closed his report by giving the following interesting statistics:

Mr. Eckels' Pleasing Talk.

As yesterday was observed as a day of prayer in all Young Men's Christian associations throughout the world, this service was included in the anniversary celebration and a meeting for this purpose was held in the afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock in the association building, Seventh street and Penn avenue. H. Walton Mitchell conducted the meeting and short addresses were made by A. B. Carson, R. P. Fosberg, S. H. MacGregor and F. W. Stonecipher.

The Hon James H. Eckels, comptroller of the currency of the United States under the Cleveland administration, was the speaker of the evening at the exercises at the Nixon theater, talking on the duties of the Young Men's Christian association to the business interests and the world in general. A short address was also made by S. S. Bryan, Jr., of Titusville, Pa., son of S. S. Bryan, the first president of the Pittsburgh Young Men's Christian association. William T. Lyon presided over the meeting.

Mr. Eckels said that he confessed to a certain amount of sentiment in addressing an audience on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the association, owing to the fact that a relative, the Rev. Dr. Francis Herron, after whom he was named, was one of the first pastors of the First Presbyterian church in which the association was organized, which was one of the reasons for his great interest in the movement. Besides, he was aware of the great influence and power the association had gained throughout the land. He declared that no other organization exercised so great an influence for good.

Congratulates Local Organization.

He said that while not of the city, but being interested in the same line of work, he could join in the congratulations to an organization whose work has extended over a period of 50 years.

Mr. Eckels said that there was no period in the life of an organization so interesting as that of an anniversary year, when its members could look backward to things accomplished and forward to those things to be taken up, both being an inspiration for further good. He said that 50 years of an association was a long stretch of time and brought many changes, and none more than the past 50 years—changes which if dreamed of a half-century ago, would have appeared incredible; waste places made good, great cities builded and untold wealth accumulated. He declared that in all the progress, Pittsburgh had kept pace with the other great cities of the world and stood ahead of all in industrial progress. He spoke of the effect the changes had on business and social interests, the change in the positions of capital and labor which makes it impossible for the same close relationship to exist between the employer and the employed, as in the days of smaller undertakings.

Y. M. C. A.'s Important Mission.

He asserted that the Young Men's Christian association was the only organization that could lessen the gulf between the employer and the employed and that the business man must realize that it is to his benefit to assist the association in its work. He said that the Young Men's Christian association was not a mere religious organization, but had broadened its scope so as to be a pronounced factor in all business undertakings, as in its work for the betterment of the young man it was laying the foundation for better citizenship by training them in the higher attributes of character. He declared that the business man should assist in the work for the same reason that he pays for fire and police protection and other safeguards to business interests, and should not look upon an appeal for aid as an appeal for charity.

He said that no man could come in contact with the Young Men's Christian association without having a higher regard for truth and a higher regard for faithfulness to an employer's interests. Such contributions as business men give to the Young Men's Christian association, he declared, should be charged to an improvement and betterment fund.

VIRGINIA, MINN., Nov. 13.—A terrific explosion occurred in the rear of the residence of Mayor Fay early today, and the handsome building is a mass of ruins. No one was injured. MEXICANS WILL EXPORT SURPLUS SUGAR STOCK

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13.—The Sugar Planters union at a meeting here have considered the disposition of the surplus stock from last year's crop. It was decided to export 10 per cent as soon as the planters commence grinding, early next January. Another 10 per cent also will be exported in February or March. Conservatively estimated, the sugar crop of 1905 will reach 250,000,000 pounds, of which the planters will control 150,000,000 pounds.

Yost Tells Michigan Eleven to Observe Training and a Trip Is Suspected—Advice Given After Battle With Chicago.

MOSSE BRINGS WORD HERE

Coach Mosse of W. U. P. returned yesterday from Ann Arbor, where he acted as head linesman in the Michigan-Chicago football game Saturday. Coach Yost of Michigan objected to Van Duser of the Northwestern university acting as head linesman, and Mosse was then agreed on by Michigan and Chicago.

After the game Mosse ate with the Michigan team and at the conclusion of the meal Coach Yost addressed Capt. Heston and the squad, asking them to keep in training. The announcement was made prior to the Chicago game that training would be over after Saturday.

"I don't know definitely Yost's meaning when he asked his team to observe training rules, but I suspect he is arranging to bring the Michigan eleven east to play," said Mosse. "From what I could glean from gossip at Michigan, I think Yost contemplates playing Dartmouth, or some other college in the east. Dartmouth recently played a no-score game with Harvard. I should not be surprised to hear of an announcement in a few days emanating from Michigan or some eastern college, to the effect that Michigan will play east this fall," concluded Mosse.

Coach Mosse also imparted the information yesterday that the team W. U. P. will meet Saturday is the Ohio university eleven of Athens, and not the Ohio State university of Columbus, which is one of the very best college teams in Ohio. The college team at Athens is far below the standard of the Ohio State eleven. W. U. P. will begin secret practice this afternoon.

Gossip About Other Games.

Columbia succeeded Saturday in accomplishing what it has been striving to do all season—defeat one of the big college football teams.

Odds of 4 to 1 were offered by Cornell adherents before the game. Before 10 minutes of the contest had passed odds were not offered. Warner, coach of Cornell, fumed and stewed upon the side lines as man after man was taken from the Cornell team, men who had fought valiantly against Princeton and come from the contest whole. Neither Warner nor another of the Cornell coaches could understand the vigor employed by the gigantic Thorpe in his maddened rushes upon the Cornell line, nor the manner in which the alert Fisher or the line bucking Carter hit their center, paused and were dragged on and on for yards, nearing the Cornell goal and only stopping when physical effort was exhausted.

Penn Cheers Yale.

A score board kept the spectators in touch with the Yale-Princeton game, Saturday on Franklin Field, and cheers greeted Yale's first touchdown. The Penn students had hoped to see Yale win, with the further hope of seeing Harvard triumph over the Elis, thus giving the university championship to Pennsylvania without a shadow of a doubt.

Of the entire Pennsylvania team the thrilling work of Quarterback Stevenson stood out in sharp relief. The Indians had evidently heard of his exploits, for he was a marked man from the time he stepped on the field. Every time he was tackled it was by not one man, but by half a dozen, the entire eleven piling up until there was no possibility that Stevenson was not thoroughly downed. So careful were the Redmen to see that Stevenson did not get away for many long runs that the officials had to help Stevenson's mates pull the Indians off when he was tackled. Yet out of it all Stevenson bounced up apparently as sound as ever.

Heston's Great Day.

It was a glorious day for Capt. Heston of Michigan, who Saturday led the yellow and blue to victory for the last time, this being his last year on the college gridiron. Chicago had been coached for weeks to "stop Heston." In every play Heston was a marked man. Chicago tackles were told to pick him out in every attack, but no wall of flesh and bone was strong enough to hold Heston Saturday.

Hurdling Chicago's line, brushing off opposing tacklers and racing down the field for gains of from three to 35 yards, the dashing Michigan leader kept the thousands of spectators marveling at his feats.

Songs were plenty at Ann Arbor; sang Michigan:

Oh, ain't it great, just simply great,
To wipe Chicago right off the slate.
Roll up the score, we want some more,
To make Chicago go 'way back and sit down.

Then came Chicago back with this:

'Way down in our hearts, we've got a feelin' for you,
For we know our work is a makin' you blue.
If you don't look out, we'll be a-scorin' on you,
'Cause you don't know just what Chicago can do-oo-oo.

Over on the East Side at Princeton, Saturday sat the Tiger cohorts, each with a chrysanthemum of huge size. In the middle was a section of 1,500 Tiger rooters, whose old Nassau "Here come the Elis"—heard often before—never was more dramatically rendered. They had a new one that proved very effective, called:

Right left, tackle and guard again:
Under the orange and black.
Under the orange and black.

DEMOCRATIC NEGROES ARE WARNED TO LEAVE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

FAIRMONT, W. VA., Nov. 13.—At the election last Tuesday a large number of local negroes cast their ballots for the Democratic candidates and it was partially through the support of the negro voters that S. C. Lowe was elected prosecuting attorney, the only Democrat elected on the county ticket.

The Republican negroes are angry over this and last evening a notice was inserted in a local Republican paper giving the Democratic negroes ten days to vacate the city. The notice says that if they do not leave peaceably, they will be driven out by force. The Democratic negroes, some of whom have resided here for many years, are determined that they will not be interfered with, and trouble is expected. Already there have been bitter words between the two factions.

KISKI AND SHADYSIDE DID SOME SLUGGING

All prepdom was yesterday talking about Kiski's victory over Shadyside Saturday. It is the consensus of opinion that Kiski's victory will help lots to furnish more interest in the school games next fall. Certain it is, Shadyside will exert every effort not to have the tide turned against it next fall.

Persons who took in the game Saturday say it was not free from roughness. The players on both teams were so eager to win that they went into the contest with all their vim and spirit. One incident related is amusing. Harry Patterson, the Shadyside quarterback, accused Urling, the Kiski halfback, of slugging.

"That's a nice game you are playing, Urling," said Patterson.

"Yes, and there is more of it coming to you, Patterson! Do you remember when we used to play hockey together and you took delight in hammering my shins with the stick every chance you got? I don't forget those wallops, and now I am getting even."

Urling is a Pittsburgh boy and also lives in the East End. There were two players that did not scrap and they were "Jud" McGregor of Kiski and Alex. McCracken of Shadyside. They played on the Interscholastic baseball team last spring and were great chums then.

Lee Lywellen, the former West Virginia baseball player, feels the loss of a Sigma Chi fraternity pin, which he lost at a football game at Exposition park.

Harry Gessler, the Brooklyn outfielder, has quit the Baltimore Medical college, to finish his course at the Maryland Medical college. Gessler is coaching the football team.

The Shadyside and High school elevens will start practice again for their annual game, which will be played Saturday at Friendship park. They will play for the runner-up championship. Dunc. Worrell, McAllister and Verner will be in shape for the game and High school will present a strong team on the field.

Kiski was holding back for Shadyside all season. Gilmore, a former Kiski and Yale player, and Brallier, the Latrobe quarterback, helped Head Coach Parker in the coaching, and the Saltsburg Preps presented a powerful team against their rivals. Every Kiski man seemed to be a star. "Whity" Colvin, a former East Liberty academy and Kiski student, was one of the delighted rooters on the side lines. Colvin has been "pulling" for Shadyside to lose the past four years and Saturday was the first time his desire was realized.

The Allegheny Prep-East Liberty game was very unsatisfactory, and it is probably the Preps will refuse to again play the blue and white. They had not met in any branch of athletics in the past three years until Saturday. Coach Snitjer of the Preps did not like the way the game was conducted by the officials, and was disgusted at the kicking. Bill Duff, who made the two touchdowns in the first half, scored the first points for East Liberty this season.

CUT A CONDUCTOR.

Negro Captured in Coraopolis When Confronted With a Gun.

George Baker, a negro, who says his home is in Pittsburgh, will receive a hearing this morning before Justice Stevenson of Coraopolis, on a charge of murderously assaulting John Kunkle, conductor of a Coraopolis street car.

Baker refused to pay fare and a scuffle ensued. Baker drew a knife and lunged viciously at the conductor, cutting him on the head, face, and arms. Kunkle was taken to the office of Dr. E. M. Hand, in Coraopolis, where his injuries were dressed.

Baker, who had fled from the car, was cornered in a narrow passage in Fifth avenue, Coraopolis, by Chief of Police Bannon. The negro again brandished his knife, but surrendered when the officer fired a revolver into the air.

DEMOCRAT WAS DISGUSTED.

Refused to Serve After Being Elected to Seat in Council.

John Workman, a well known oil driller, was at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad station last night, having just come in. He is a Republican and was full of news that McKim's Creek, a little town near St. Mary's, had gone Republican for the first time in its history.

"There was great enthusiasm among the Republicans when the news got out," said Workman, "and corresponding depression among the Democrats. There was just one Democrat, who ought to have felt good, for he was elected to council, the only Democrat on the ballot who got a majority. But he did not feel good. With the remark that the tail might as well go with the hide, he sat down yesterday and wrote out his resignation, not caring for the place so long as he had no Democratic colleagues."

Fire in a Washing Machine.

A fire in an old washing machine in the yard of the residence of Mrs. Mary Hemminghouse in Meyran avenue last night resulted in an alarm from box 239. The fire, which was trifling, was erroneously started by children and the loss was slight.

PITCHER HEINZ SIGNS WITH THE DALLAS CLUB

Carl Heinz, the local boy who had a successful season, which just closed, pitching for Cumberland, has signed with the Dallas (Tex.) league team for next year. Heinz is a right-hander and gives promise of developing into bigger league material. He turned down other offers to sign with Dallas.

The official batting averages of the Connecticut State league have been announced. Osteen of Norwich led the league with the mark of .413. Fred Crolius, who managed Norwich, was third, hitting at .338. Tom O'Hara of Punxsutawney, who played the outfield for Hartford, did the best work of the Pittsburghers in the league, by hitting at .260. Jimmy Ferguson, the East Pittsburgh boy who played short for Hartford, was not in the best of health and his stick work was surprisingly low. Rising of New London is the Rochester (Pa.) boy, who jumped to play with Altoona. Pitcher Charlie Parkins of Roscoe was also with Hartford. The averages follow:

	G.	A.B.	R.	H.	Ave.
Crolius	114	414	53	140	.338
O'Hara	101	392	51	80	.260
Rising	38	152	18	33	.217
Ferguson	56	203	24	39	.192
Parkins	38	100	6	16	.160

Charlie Crowe of Niles may manage the Sharon team next season. Crowe is thinking of going into business in Sharon and the directors are trying to have him consent to take charge of the team.

"When, in the ninth inning, with all the bases occupied, a player puts the ball over the fence and turns a prospective 3 to 0 defeat into a 4 to 3 victory, he naturally expects a handclap or two, especially from a home crowd," says Bobby Wood. "But up in Milwaukee one afternoon I did exactly this thing and there was never a sign of recognition from the stands—not even a warming whoop from the bleachers."

"Crowd gone home in disgust?"

"Oh, no, the crowd was all there yet—about 37 people, all told, I should say. But just before I whacked the ball over into the next lot a man had gone through the stands handing out a new advertisement for some kind of beer, and the 37 spectators were so interested in finding out where bigger steins than the ordinary ones could be had for 5 cents that they forgot they were at a ball game."

Clarke Armour, late manager of the Cleveland club, relates a tale on John Gochnaur. "I see that 'Dutch' Gochnaur is playing ball out in California," said Armour. "There's a warm spot in my heart for that boy, and I hope he will succeed wherever he goes.

"When the season of 1903 ended 'Goch,' had over $700 coming to him in a lump. I heard he was going home to Altoona, and started out to find him to wish him good luck. I found him, you can guess where—in a place where it wasn't necessary to be thirsty if you had the price.

"The stock, fixtures and the building itself might possibly have been worth $350. Just as I went in, 'Dutch' was passing his $700—35 $20-bills—over the bar and saying:

"'I'll take the place.'

"I got him out of there and on board a train for home. If I hadn't he might be in the business now."

WOUNDED SLAYER GUARDED FROM VICTIM'S FRIENDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

MACON, GA., Nov. 13.—There have been no further developments today in the attack made at an early hour this morning on a hospital here in which Frank Christian, the slayer of Fred Tharpe, lies wounded. No further attempt has been made by friends of the dead man to secure the person of Christian since Dr. Elder, resident surgeon, drew his revolver and informed the mob that he would kill the first man who crossed the threshold. The members of the mob believed he meant what he said, for they took their departure from the premises and have not reappeared. While no anticipation of any trouble is held by the authorities, a force of officers is still doing guard duty and no effort to protect the wounded man will be left undone.

Christian, who was cut in the stomach during the affair which ended in Tharpe's death, is resting quietly tonight and the attending surgeons are still of the opinion that he will recover from the effects of his injuries.

SOCIETY IS READY FOR HORSE SHOW

Opens Today in Madison Square Garden and Promises to Be Best Ever.

PRICES OF BOXES ARE HIGHER

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—With a flare of trumpets and a flutter of finery, the twentieth annual exhibition of the National Horse Show association will open tomorrow morning in Madison Square garden. In the words of the professional showman, it is to be "bigger, grander and more magnificent than ever before."

One hundred more entries were made to the various classes than last year, but that is of secondary importance to the average horse show patron. The clatter of hoofs of high bred equines come after pretty faces, silks and feathers. For weeks past society has been preparing for the six days' display that begins next Monday. The capacities of the most exclusive tailoring and dressmaking establishments have been taxed, many thousands of dollars have been expended on gorgeous creations, and Mr. Four Hundred and Miss Knickerbocker are ready for the competition.

The prices paid for boxes this year are a shade higher than ever before. The Morgans, Sturgises, Kanes, Joneses and other equally well-known New Yorkers were purchasers, while the out-of-town buyers are more numerous than usual. Philadelphia and Boston are particularly well represented.

Two notable absentees from the list of exhibitors will be Reginald Vanderbilt and Dr. W. E. Woodend. The former has not yet told Mr. Jerome what he knows about Richard Canfield's Forty-fourth street house, so it would be impossible for him to speed his high-steppers in Madison Square garden with any degree of comfort. Dr. Woodend has not recovered from the financial shock received shortly after last year's show.

Dr. Wentz, who owned and exhibited Lord Brilliant for so many seasons, has only a few horses now. Lord Brilliant is to appear this week from the stable of Mrs. John Gerken, whose list of prize-winning animals is now second to none.

Judge W. H. Moore made no entries because of the recent death of his son. The victory of his famous horse, Forest King, over Lord Brilliant for the Waldorf-Astoria cup last year and the latter's victory over Forest King for the championship two days later, are still fresh in the minds of horse show patrons.

There are to be quite a number of new faces in the ring and some of these maiden exhibitors have very formidable stables. Among the old-timers will be Oakland Farm (Alfred G. Vanderbilt), E. D. Jordan, Mrs. J. B. M. Grosvenor, Mrs. J. H. Moore, E. H. Weatherbee, Mrs. E. R. Laden, Stuart Duncan, R. F. Carman, Albert de Cernea, Miss K. L. Wilkes, H. N. Bain, George A. Coleman, R. E. Bonner and C. J. and Harry Hamlin.

PITTSBURGHERS ARE PRESENT

Knights of Columbus Celebrate Seventh Anniversary of Founding of Order at Youngstown, O.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—The local Knights of Columbus today celebrated the seventh anniversary of the founding of the order with elaborate services. Visiting knights to the number of 1,000 were in the city. They came from Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Columbus, South Bend, Ind., New Castle, Sharon, Meadville, Oil City, Wellsville, Rochester, Pa., and other cities. George E. Clark of South Bend, Ind., district deputy, and Dr. C. A. Wintgerter, state deputy of West Virginia, were present. The knights attended mass at St. Joseph's church this morning, Father John Flute officiating. This afternoon in Excelsior hall, 85 candidates were initiated into the second and third degrees.

This evening the knights sat down to a banquet in Excelsior hall. P. J. McCarty acted as toastmaster. Among the toasts delivered was one by Dr. C. A. Wintgerter.

YOST STORY PLAUSIBLE.

Wisconsin Authorities Silent, and Students Have Vision of a New Coach.

MADISON, WIS., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—The Wisconsin football team returned from Minneapolis late this morning. Most of the men were in bad shape. The injuries appear to be only surface bruises, however, and all of the men will be in the practice again this week. All the efforts of the coaches will now be used to whip the team into shape for the Chicago game.

The rumor has again gone the rounds that Yost had offered to come to Wisconsin in case satisfactory arrangements can be made. None of the athletic officials made a direct denial to the rumor and it is this silence on the part of the authorities that makes the proposition seem plausible.

Former Judge Moore Injured.

YORK, Nov. 13.—(Special.)—J. E. Moore, aged 82, a former associate judge of York county, was struck by a trolley car last night while riding home on a bicycle and seriously injured.

CENTRAL TO DECIDE ON ITS CIRCUIT

Club Owners to Meet Tomorrow at Indianapolis—Marion Out of Body.

RYAN WILL HAVE A CLUB

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

TERRE HAUTE, Nov. 13.—The Central Baseball league meeting, to be held in Indianapolis Tuesday, is expected to complete the circuit and appoint a schedule committee, that the preparations for next season may be proceeded with earlier than for the season of 1904. It is thought that this will be a precaution against possible complications such as marred the first half of the past season.

There is no longer doubt that Evansville will be reinstated and that Springfield, O., will take the Marion (Ind.) franchise, but William Dugan, who had the Marion club, no doubt will be in charge of the Springfield association. He is understood to have lost money at Marion, and the expectation is that he will recoup his losses at Springfield. The meeting also will select the city for the annual meeting in January. The probability is that Dayton will be the meeting place.

Jimmy Ryan, a one-time National league star and last season manager of Colorado Springs, is to be playing manager of Evansville. According to advices from Evansville, Ryan is not to repeat the blunder of the past season in hiring hasbeens of major leagues at high salaries. It has been the policy of other Central league managements to develop new players, and several associations have profited by this policy in a financial way by selling them to major league clubs at the end of the first season. It is said that Ryan is to have complete authority, but he has declared his purpose to sign only such players as can be obtained at salaries which will permit Evansville to make some money for a change.

President G. W. Bement, John P. Walker, treasurer of Vanderburgh county, and Ryan, will have a controlling number of shares of the stock company. Ryan is to go to Evansville after the Indianapolis meeting.

The Terre Haute management has signed a number of youngsters, who are to have try-outs. These are Pitchers Louis Hunt, Elwood, Ind.; James Clark, Chicago; Clyde Gay, Bloomington, Ill.; John H. Miller, Mattoon. Catchers "Bunny" Pearce, Indianapolis; William Forney, Angola, Ind. Infielders, J. A. Sherman, whose right name is Sherman Bristow, and who is a son of Third Assistant Postmaster General Bristow; Harry Welch, Mt. Sterling, Ky. The old men reserved are First Baseman Richardson, Outfielders Thompson, Docker and Warrender, Pitchers Smith and Gray. Manager Warrender is the only one reserved who has signed as yet.

Nothing more has been heard of the proposed sale of the Grand Rapids club to Ganzel and McGuire, since the former went to Ft. Wayne to ask Mautner for the price he and his partner, Heenan of Terre Haute, put on the club.

EGEBERG IS A GIANT.

Danish Champion Wrestler Took Physical Culture Prizes Three Years in Succession.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(Special.)—H. H. Egeberg, the Danish wrestler, who has been matched to meet John Piening, the American champion, is a wonderfully built athlete.

Egeberg is a giant in stature. He stands 6 feet 1¾ inches high, and when in condition weighs about 190 pounds. He is proportionately built, and, according to his manager, was awarded the physical culture prize for the best developed athlete in Denmark three years in succession.

SKINNER BADLY INJURED.

Wash.-Jeff. Fast Halfback Has Shoulder Shattered at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Halfback Skinner of the Washington and Jefferson eleven had his shoulder shattered in the Medics' game yesterday afternoon and was in bad condition last night when he left for home. He is out of the game for the season. Coach Seaman expressed himself as rather dissatisfied with the showing Washington and Jefferson made.

Coach Lloyd of the Meds. was all smiles at the result of the game and the Doctors had one of their old-time celebrations last night after the game was over.

LAURIUM ORGANIZES SEVEN.

Fred Lake to Play With Portage Lake This Season.

HOUGHTON, MICH., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Laurium, despite claims that no team could be formed unless Bruce Steward could be secured from Portage Lake, has finally organized a good hockey seven for the coming season. Portage Lake lineup is the same as last year, plus Fred Lake of Sault Ste. Marie. Pittsburgh and both American and Canadian Soos will have strong clubs and the American league will not be so one-sided as was the case the past two years.

MIKE FINN MAY MANAGE TOLEDO BASEBALL CLUB

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Mike J. Kelly, manager of the St. Paul team, champions of the American Association, and now half owner of the Toledo club of the same organization, was in the city yesterday in company with Charles J. Strobel of the Toledo club. Kelly and Stroble left last night for Indianapolis, where they go on business pertaining to the Toledo team. There has been some question as to whether Kelly would be at the head of the Toledo club the coming season, it having been hinted that Mike Finn of last season's Little Rock team, would in all probability go there to manage the team.

Latrobe Celebrated Steeltown Victory.

LATROBE, PA., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—One of the biggest and most enthusiastic popular demonstrations in this town took place last night in honor of the victory of the Latrobe football eleven in the big game at Steeltown. The daily papers issued extras, and preparations were made to give the team a reception on their homecoming. The Latrobe team, however, did not arrive in Latrobe until today.

WINNING HONORS AS A SCIENTIST

Remarkable Achievements of Young California Woman in Medical Research Abroad.

RICH, PRETTY AND TALENTED

(Special Correspondence to The Gazette.)

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—Annie G. Lyle, M. D., may not be the most wonderful woman in the world, but she is one of them. Here is a beautiful, womanly creature, possessing large wealth, graces that adorn any society, and she is of the very highest, youth, a true feminine love for the pretty gew gaws of attire, who loves the luxury that wealth makes possible, and yet is the honored co-worker of the savants of three countries. More than that, the greatest specialist of modern times in children's diseases, Dr. Theodor Escherich, head of the University of Vienna, looked to her to defend the claims of his co-worker, Dr. Moser, as the discoverer of the serum that cures scarlet fever, against those of Drs. Baginsky and Aronshon of Berlin. Dr. Lyle succeeded, not only before the tribunal called to pass upon the matter in Paris, but at the congress in Madrid in 1903, and at the recent great convention of medical men at the St. Louis fair.

Before the first tribunal Miss Lyle appeared in person to defend Dr. Moser. At Madrid and St. Louis, Dr. Escherich, acknowledging the source of his data, made the successful pleas. At both congresses Dr. Lytle was present to confirm the statements of Dr. Escherich, and received sufficient adulation from the great men assembled to turn the head of any but the sensible, level headed American girl that she is.

Miss Lyle is now in Baltimore after a two years' absence visiting old friends and enjoying the hospitality of the highest society women of the city.

To the general public Dr. Lyle is by no means unknown, but that knowledge does not come from contemplation of the success she has made in isolating formidable bacteria or germs of deadly disease. It comes from a tragedy in Sonoma county, California, where the woman and the doctor in her, rose to their greatest humanitarian height. It was in 1901 that a gay party of ten young people were coaching through the mountains of Sonoma county. The road wound about a steep cliff rising on one side, while a precipitous wall fell below on the other. The horses became unmanageable, although guided by one of the best whips in the state. They dashed down the narrow trail, the coach rocking, and finally horses, coach and its occupants were hurled into the canyon. It crashed 300 feet to the rocky bed below. With the exception of Dr. Lyle, every one of the unfortunate passengers were buried in the wreck. She was thrown on a natural shelf in the awful descent, and beyond a few bruises was unhurt.

Almost as soon as she alighted, she was on her feet, scrambling down the rocks toward the coach from whence came the shrieks of the wounded and the moans of the dying. There was no one to help her raise the coach to free the imprisoned men and women. She drew from the boot of the vehicle one of its axes, cut down a small tree and using this for a lever raised the broken coach sufficiently to extricate one of the men, who, fortunately had sustained but a broken leg, and with his help the rest of the party was soon brought from beneath the wreck. Two were dying and two others subsequently died. All the others were frightfully injured.

There is no doubt that the professional skill of Dr. Lyle saved the lives of three of her friends. She bound up their wounds with bandages torn from her own skirts. Then when she had made them all as comfortable as was possible, she cut the traces that held the one living horse, and mounting him rode four miles into Cazedero and brought ambulances and doctors. This is the kind of stuff this American specialist is made of and the whole country rang with her praises.

Dr. Lyle is a California girl. Her father was one of the wealthiest of San Francisco stock brokers, and, dying, left a large fortune to widow and baby daughter. Mrs. Lyle after a number of years married again, this time Mr. S. H. Harmon, the owner of 40,000 acres of timber lands and innumerable mills throughout the state—in short a millionaire several times over.

Miss Lyle came to Johns Hopkins Medical school in 1896, and for six years, interrupted by a long illness which delayed her work, she devoted her energies to the understanding of the secrets of anatomy and fathoming the mysteries of the laboratory. It is doubtful if a medical school ever had so remarkable a student. Miss Lyle secured apartments in fashionable Mount Vernon place and there set up a luxurious abode, which included a duenna of years and discretion for the sake of the proprieties, a French maid, a cook of unrivalled abilities, and another servant or two.

The fair student possessed her own carriage and a natty trap and as stunning a pair of bays as ever tossed thoroughbred heads over the pavements of Baltimore. In this cozy home the brightest and best of the social personages and the greatest legal and medical lights found a congenial atmosphere, and while her entertainments were many, they in no wise seemed to interfere with her industry at the medical school.

Six months before she finished her course Dr. Theodore Escherich, the famous head of the University of Vienna, world renowned as a specialist in children's ailments, paid her the highest compliment that ever yet medical woman received. He invited her to go to Vienna and co-operate with him in certain lines of investigation, which it was hoped would prove of inestimable value to the human race. Dr. Lyle accepted and shortly after her arrival in the Austrian capital, the scarlet fever serum, of which the vast honor of discovery is now given to Dr. Moser of the Vienna university, was announced, and in connection therewith, Dr. Lyle, 22 years old, leaped into prominence in medical circles which made her known throughout the civilized world.

Dr. Lyle is going to her California home for a six months' rest. Rumor has it that she had been made a flattering offer by the authorities of the Rockefeller Medical School of Research to devote the next five years of her work to that institution. Dr. Lyle seeks no practice. Her whole aim is to be the real savior of children.

GRANDNEPHEW HONORS PRIEST

CEREMONY WAS IMPRESSIVE

The handsome monument erected in St. Mary's cemetery to the memory of the late Rev. Father James Treacy, of St. Brigid's Roman Catholic church was unveiled yesterday afternoon by Master James Treacy, the grandnephew of the lamented priest.

The ceremonies, which were most impressive, opened at 3 o'clock with a service of song by the boys' choir of St. Brigid's church. The Rev. A. A. Lambing of St. Mary's church, Wilkinsburg, reviewed the life of Father Treacy and the Rev. Father Martin Ryan, the present rector of St. Brigid's, delivered a eulogy on his predecessor.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather over 500 people attended the ceremony. Among priests of the Pittsburgh diocese on the platform were the Revs. Francis Kane, Philip Brady, P. G. Quilter, John Gallagher, Paul Shea, and J. B. Barry, assistant to Father Ryan.

The monument which marks the grave of Father Treacy in the priest's plot is a handsome marble shaft, about 12 feet high, and was erected at a cost of $1,000 subscribed by the congregation of St. Brigid's church and a few intimate friends of the deceased divine. At its base are the following inscriptions:

Erected to the memory of the Rev. James Treacy by a few of his friends. Born at Mallow, County Cork, Ireland, April 19, 1828. Died in Pittsburgh, November 8, 18 8.

He was the revered pastor of St. Brigid's church for 24 years. In doctrine he taught many and strengthened weary hands. To the poor he gave, ere charity began.

Underneath these two is the following Latin phrases: "Requiem Aeternam Donna Ei Domini."

Saturday was the sixth anniversary of the burial of Father Treacy, and it was the original intention of the committee to have the unveiling of the monument on that day, but in order to make the affair more solemn and impressive the exercises were held yesterday.

Tomorrow Archbishop Chapelle will call on President Roosevelt and deliver to him a message of good will from Pope Pius X. He will leave here for New Orleans tomorrow night.

AN OBJECT LESSON

In a Restaurant.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from sixty to eighty years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating, you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous sickly looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantity, any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly and thus giving the stomach a much needed rest and an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel, nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

and other medals were awarded the Butterick Fashion Exhibit at the St. Louis World's Fair.

A SUPERB ART PANEL nearly three feet long—in tint—representing the eleven changes in style in woman's dress during the century MAILED FREE on receipt of 4 cents in stamps to cover postage

The feature of the Butterick exhibit which won the Grand Prize at the St. Louis World's Fair was a series of eleven costumes, showing the styles in woman's dress during the past century—ten years apart. These have been charmingly drawn by Anna Burnham Westermann, and reproduced with tint in the form of an art panel, nearly three feet long. It is well worth framing to adorn the walls of Milady's boudoir, parlor or den, and will be mailed, rolled without creasing, on receipt of four cents, to cover postage, etc. Small outline drawings of these figures are shown in this advertisement—they give but a hint of the charm of the original drawings as shown on the panel itself.

The Delineator stands for the highest degree of excellence in the portrayal of fashions for the women of the civilized world. This same superiority is shown in its treatment of every department of home life.

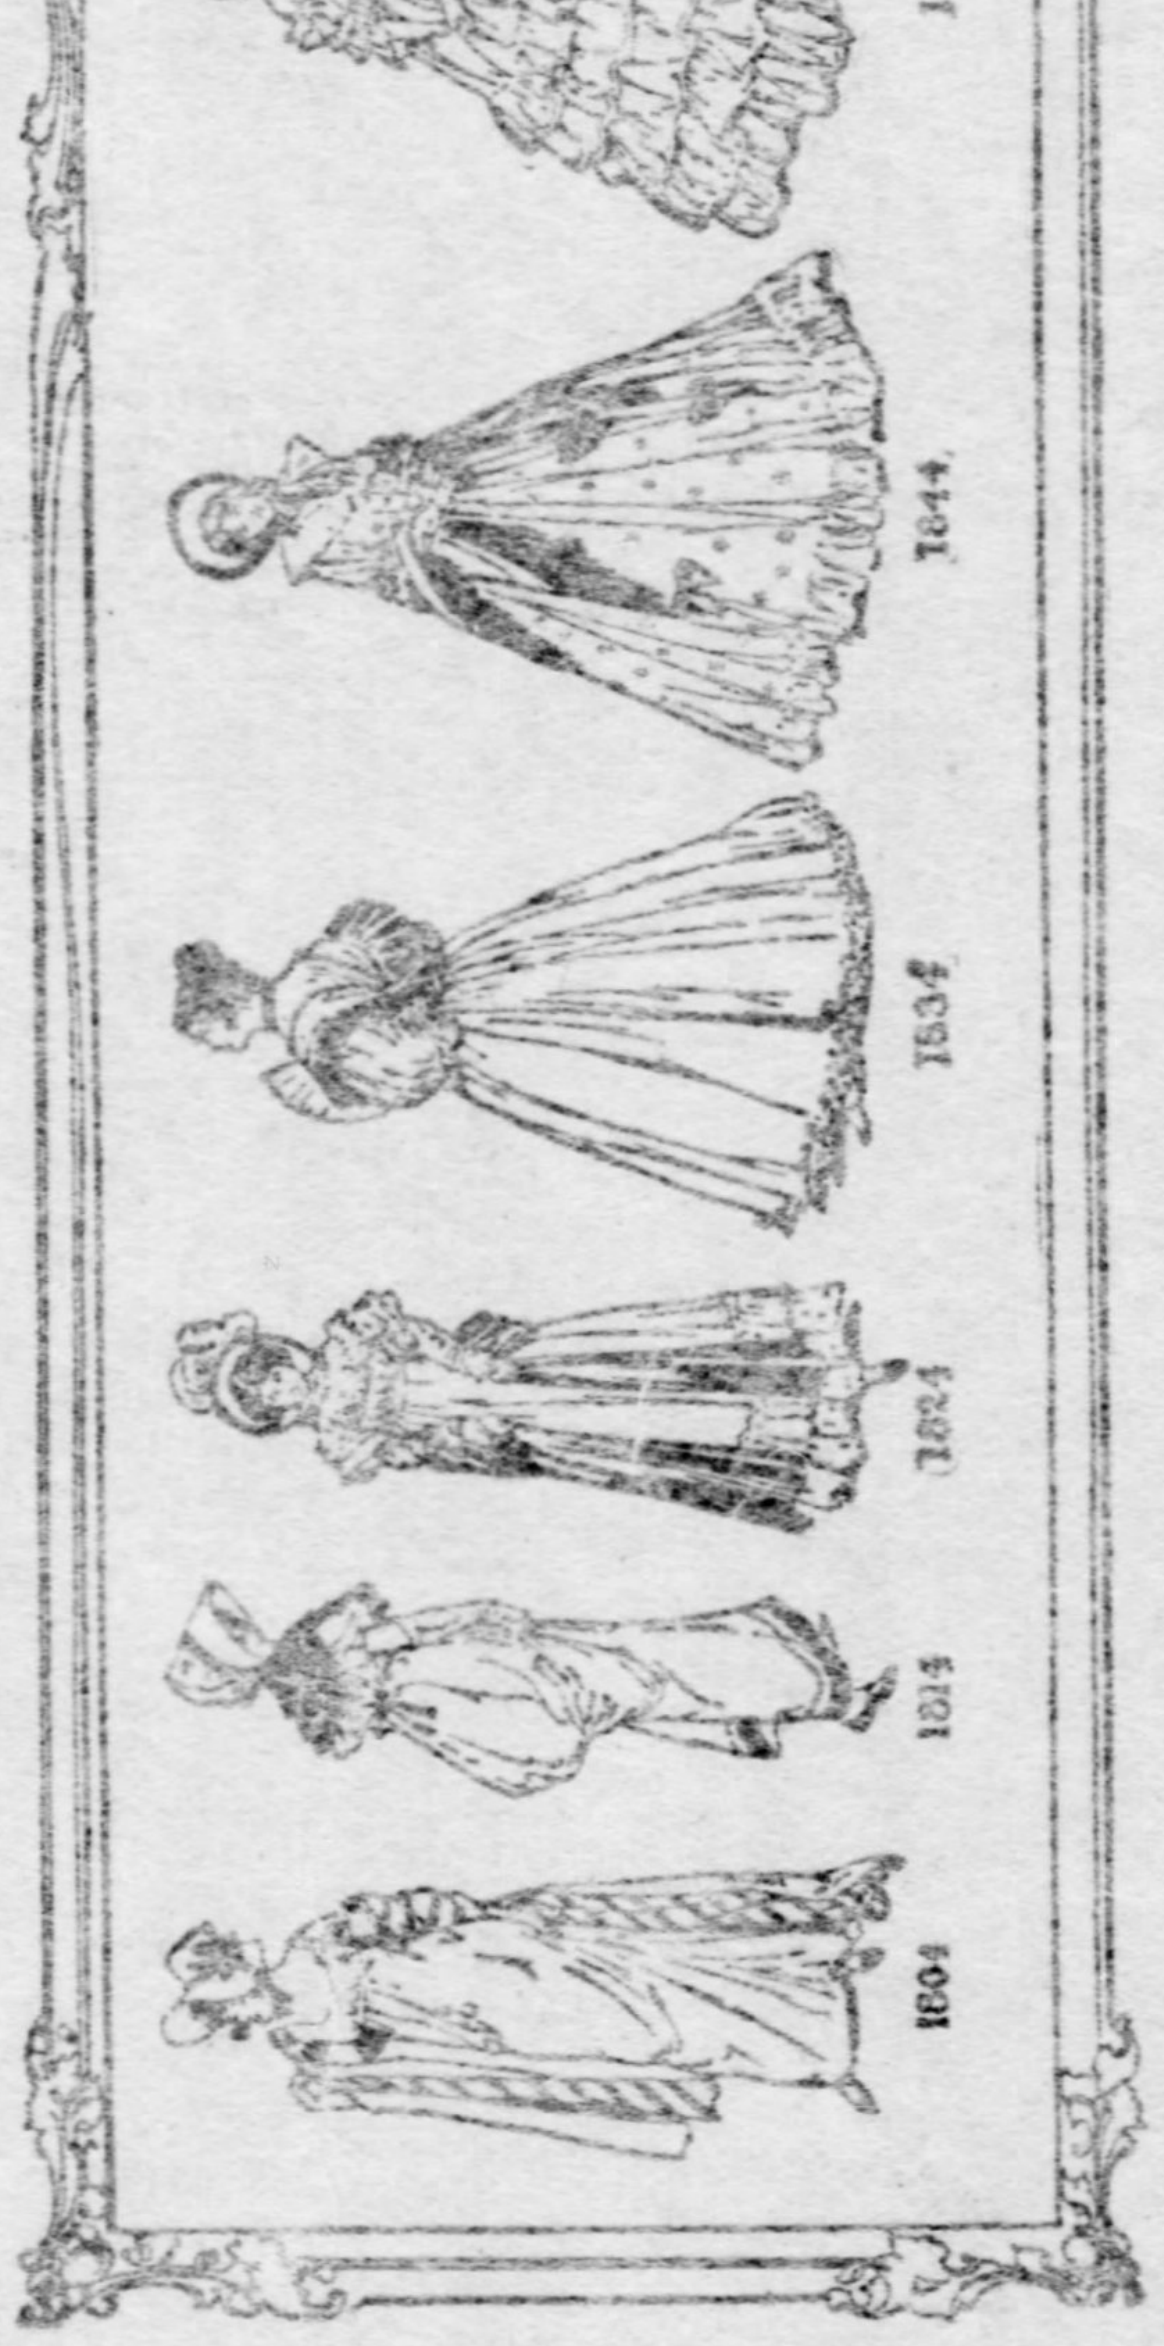
is the best number we have ever issued—we think—and more than ever proves The Delineator to be "the best of all the magazines published for Woman."

The Love Songs from the Wagner Operas have, for the first time, been worthily put into English. Richard Le Gallienne has translated them with a charm that will make them endeared forever. The accompanying decorations in color, by J. C. Leyendecker, are superb, and well worthy of this master feature.



Other contributors to this number are: Robert Grant, F. Hopkinson Smith, Alice Brown, Elmore Elliott Peake, Mary Stewart Cutting, L. Frank Baum, the author of "The Wizard of Oz," etc., Julia Magruder, Albert Bigelow Paine, Grace MacGowan Cooke, Gustav Kobbé, Lillie Hamilton French, Dr. Grace Peckham Murray, Florence Earle Coates, Aloysius Coll, Carolyn Wells, Jennie Pendleton Ewing. This issue contains superb illustrations in color and in black and white, by J. C. Leyendecker, Martin Justice, L. D'Emo, Paul J. Meylan, S. Werner, Christine S. Bredin, Herbert Paus, Harry Stacey Benton, F. Richardson, R. Emmett Owen and Harry A. Linnell.

Fashion Plates in Colors The midwinter fashions are shown in profusion in full color and in black and white. Better this month than ever—as we promised they would be. Getting nearer to perfection with each issue—the styles shown this month are simply temptations—the best way to overcome them is to yield to them.

During the ten months ended October 31 The Gazette carried 238,364 agate lines more classified advertising than during the corresponding period last year. The Sunday Gazette gained 88,074 more lines and the Daily Gazette gained 150,290 lines. The reason for The Gazette's great increase in classified advertising patronage, during a period of general business depression, is explained by the fact that the daily average circulation of The Gazette for the past ten months was over 71,000, far exceeding any other morning or Sunday paper in Pittsburgh.

100,000 PEOPLE SAW THE 'MUMS

DISPLAY ENDS THIS WEEK

The first chilly blasts of winter yesterday did not cause the crowd of sightseers at Schenley park to be materially diminished. Flagstaff Hill was white with a layer of snow that clung to the withered grass, but the melancholy scene was enlivened by gaily-dressed people who eschewed umbrellas and braved the wind and snow to pay their final tribute to the lordly chrysanthemum.

It was the last Sunday of the show in the Phipps conservatories. The blooms now look at their best, but within a few days the petals will fall and only the bare stems will be left. Before the end of the week the flowers will be removed and visitors will have to be content with the wonders of the palm houses and the little cacti desert. A few late blooming chrysanthemums will be left next Sunday. It is estimated that over 100,000 people have seen the exhibition.

Yesterday's crowd of park visitors was augmented by a big excursion on the Allegheny Valley railway, which brought several hundred people from Oil City and towns throughout that region. The art gallery was a mecca for every person who stopped at the park, but it was difficult to tell whether the people went to see the pictures or to take temporary shelter from the storm. The sale of catalogues, however, was large and this is taken as the best indication of the interest in the art work.

The Highland park zoo had many visitors who braved the disagreeable weather in order to see the animals. Five golden-bearded Polish chickens, donated to the zoo by Murry A. Verner, were placed in a conspicuous cage. The birds were purchased last week at the St. Louis poultry show. A canary bird and a robin also were donated to the menagerie.

The attendance at the free organ recitals in the Carnegie music hall has been large throughout the season and yesterday many people were turned away.

WHY CHURCH IS SHUNNED BY MANY WORKINGMEN

Pastor W. S. Lockard Tells Reasons Given for Avoiding Worship and Answers Those He Has Heard.

"Workingmen and the Church" was the sermon topic of the Rev. W. S. Lockard in the Ames Methodist Episcopal church yesterday. The pastor took for his text, Mark xii:37, "The common people heard Him gladly," and said in part:

"This assertion concerning the ministry of Jesus Christ should cause every minister of our day to ask himself, 'Do they hear me gladly?' Why are our churches not crowded with the common people of whom Lincoln has said: 'The Lord must love because He made so many of them?'

"In trying to answer these questions it occurred to me that I had better appeal to the people themselves. From the pulpit, by correspondence and in private conversation I have elicited the following answers to the question, 'Why do workingmen shun the church?'

"The church is held responsible for the inconsistencies of its members. It is charged with a lack of the fraternal spirit. It is not practical in its work as compared with fraternal organizations. The ministry is not in touch with the workingman. The church has lost its old-time power. Habits are formed; have no inclination to change them. Can't clothe my family properly, too much pride and fine dressing in the church. I need recreation on Sunday. My habit of profanity has caused me to lose respect for the sacred.

"Some of these are reasons; many are excuses. If you are looking for perfection in organizations or people you will never find them on earth. Would you feel at home among the absolutely perfect? He that would have friends must show himself friendly. Do you give us a fair chance? Can you name a single fraternal organization which has given $25,000,000 as a thank offering from which it expects no return? I can name a single denomination which did that at the beginning of this century.

"You need recreation, but you need it for mind and soul and you will never find it breaking God's law. The church offers a home for you and your family and you will find in the minister, in most cases, a man who has come from your own ranks and one who is anxious and willing to serve you and your family. If every workingman in Pittsburgh would cease to patronize the saloon he could clothe his family as well as could be desired. The great majority of workingmen are sound and I do not believe they have lost faith in the God of their mothers. There are over 100,000 men in fraternal organizations in this state alone who subscribe to the word of God and the teachings of Jesus Christ before they are admitted to membership.

"If the church and workingmen could understand each other better; if you would form your opinions inside instead of outside of the church; if all of us could take our eyes off organizations and men and see no man save Jesus, the golden age would soon be ushered in."

Awarded Two Gold Medals at World's Fair, St. Louis.

The Grand Trunk has been notified by the superior jury of the world's fair that their exhibit in the fish and game building has been awarded two gold medals. These are given under two classifications in the fishing and hunting groups.

The Grand Trunk pavilion in the fish and game building is one of the most admired in that department, and its artistic and unique conception has attracted marked attention. The exterior of the pavilion is constructed with an eye to architectural beauty, and is ornamented with large photographic pictures 54x78 inches of scenes in the several summer resort districts and fishing and hunting confines in Canada, surmounted by a series of some of the finest deer and moose heads that were obtainable from the Canadian forests. The interior of the pavilion is also artistically arranged with other large photographs, together with oil paintings and mounted fish and game, with Multilens, Mutoscopes projecting moving picture scenes along the line of the railway. One of the leading features of the exhibit is a specimen moose head with 66-inch antler spread, said to be one of the six largest in the world.

In recent years the Grand Trunk has been honored by all the great expositions that have taken place, and has received the following awards: Diploma and gold medal, Paris, 1900; commemorative diploma, Pan-American exhibition, Buffalo, 1901; commemorative diploma, Wolverhampton, Eng., art exhibition, 1902; silver medal, Eastern Townships exhibition, 1903; diploma, Industrial exhibition, Toronto, 1903; diploma, Fifth National Industrial exhibition, Tokyo, Japan, 1903; two gold medals, Universal exposition, world's fair, St. Louis, Mo., 1904.

PASTOR PREACHES EULOGY ON THE LIFE OF LUTHER

The Rev. Paul Weyand Speaks of Noble Character and the Achievements of Reformer.

The character and achievement of Martin Luther formed the theme of the sermon of the Rev. Paul Weyand in the Knoxville Methodist Episcopal church last evening. The pastor paid the leader of the reform movement a high tribute and said in part:

Four hundred and twenty-one years ago last Thursday was born Martin Luther who, as the centuries go on, judged simply by what he did and the impulses and aspirations he put on foot, I consider next to Saint Paul, the greatest man that the world has ever seen. There may be figures of more heroic hold but I have yet to see them.

The supreme intelligences of the last 400 years of all Christian and civilized peoples bear testimony to the far-reaching results of the sublime courage of the monk of Wittenberg, who, when taunted with the remark early in his career as a reformer, that "the world is against you," replied, "Well, then it is Martin Luther against the world." The spirit of such a man makes the temples throb and the blood course quicker through one's veins as he reads it, even in cold type five centuries after it was uttered.

THE REV. PAUL WEYAND.
Pastor of the Knoxville Methodist Episcopal Church.

James Freeman Clarke, the historian, accredits Luther as "the real author of modern thought and action—the giant founder of modern civilization." Carlyle declared that Luther's appearance at the Diet of Worms April 17, 1521, was the greatest scene in modern history. As the years pass on science, with its ever widening circle of healing, discovery and sanitation; Protestantism with all it has ushered in or has revivified; Catholicism, with its millions of devotees as they see in their own Council of Trent and in the counter reformation things which the work of Luther brought to their church—will acknowledge more and more the strength and trueness of the Titanic blows which the stout-hearted German wielded in the cause of human enlightenment and civil and religious freedom.

Principal Tulloch in reply to a criticism of Luther as unrefined states the case fairly from every point of view by saying: "Not because he was faultless or always just and right, but because he was with all his faults a great beneficent character who, when the world was sick and in dire trouble, brought a new life to it and moved it forward in paths of righteousness—his name has called forth an unexampled ovation."

THE REV. DR. HOLMES TALKS TO MANY OLD-TIME FRIENDS

Used No Text, but Discussed Matters to Which He Never Referred as Pastor.

The Rev. Dr. Richard S. Holmes of Philadelphia preached yesterday morning in the East Liberty Presbyterian church to a large congregation which included many of his old friends from other churches. He took no text and was invited by the Rev. Dr. Sneed to "say to the people what he had not said while a pastor in Pittsburgh and what he now wished he had said." Dr. Holmes said:

I was asked yesterday how I like Philadelphia. Well, I like it, but the friendships one makes in the course of years are not easily forgotten, and the new friends, to a man as old as I am, will never be like the old friends.

The circumstances that attended the election of last Tuesday make that occasion in American history a record-breaker. The man chosen to succeed himself is the first one out of a series of five vice presidents who succeeded their fallen chiefs, to be promoted to the chief place in the nation. He is the first man who served through his term as vice president to be made president before he is 50 years of age; the first man chosen by such an overwhelming majority; the first man who has been associated through three successive terms with one great secretary of state. He is the first man who, as president of the American nation, has dared in the face of opinions of the people to act up to his convictions with a courage equal to the strength of his convictions. He has dared in the course of his official life to stand up against the great labor organizations of the country, and has dared to stand for the interests of the people in a conflict with the great coal corporations. He has dared, in the face of prejudice on all sides, with magnificent courage, to treat as a man a man whose father had been a slave and who was himself a slave, and rebuke this prejudice on the part of the American people.

There are three kinds of prejudice to be considered. First, there is the prejudice of the whites against the negroes. We had an illustration of this when the Pittsburgh presbytery elected its only colored minister its moderator. I used to call on a black man to lead in prayer in my church in Pittsburgh, and the president of the board of trustees said to me: 'Why do you call on that man? The people do not like it.'

There is also the strong prejudice of the negro against the white man. And the longer he lives, and the greater his knowledge and power, the greater his prejudice. No wonder he often wishes for death that he then may be white. Then, in the third place, the negro has a prejudice against himself. Now, the question is not what the white man will do with the negro, but what he will do with us. It all depends on what we do now for the black man.

Dr. Holmes closed pleading for the wants of Lincoln university and asked the congregation for gifts and bequests. He said he was determined to raise $100,000 for the institution as quickly as possible.

THE RESTORATION IS PROPHESIED OF THE TABERNACLE OF DAVID

Pastor C. T. Russell of Allegheny Delivers Two Addresses at Mansfield, O.

A CONFERENCE IN JERUSALEM

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

MANSFIELD, O., Nov. 13.—Pastor C. T. Russell of Allegheny, Pa., spoke twice here today in the Auditorium of the Young Men's Christian association. His afternoon topic was "God's Oathbound Covenant With the Seed of Abraham." The second discourse, on "The Restoration of the Tabernacle of David," follows. His text was: "After these things will I return, and will build again the tabernacle of David which has fallen; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up, that the residue of men may seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom My name is called, saith the Lord. Who doeth all these things."—Acts xv:16-17.

The Apostle James uttered the words of our text at a general church conference in Jerusalem. The subject of investigation was the course of Paul and Barnabas in preaching the gospel to Gentiles. Many of the brethren felt that this was a serious error—a breach of the social proprieties as well as an infraction of the religious proprieties which the Lord had established. For over 1,800 years the natural seed of Abraham had been specially favored of God, and all the promises of the divine word had been to these alone, as the prophet Amos declared, "You only have I known (recognized) of all the families of the earth." (Amos iii:2.) All the other nations, as the Apostle Paul intimates, were left of the Lord without revelation or message or covenant, and were consequently "without God and without hope in the world."—(Eph. ii:12.)

Under these conditions it is not to be wondered at that the Jews had come to feel a religious exclusiveness, and to believe that although the Gentiles were fellow creatures and of the one general Adamic stock with themselves, nevertheless the Lord had made differences, and that, accordingly, to the stock of Israel alone belonged the chief divine favors. The apostle intimates the same thing, saying, "What advantage hath the Jew?" He answers, "Much every way, chiefly because to them were committed the oracles of God."—(Rom. iii:2.) We remember also our Lord's instruction to his disciples at His first advent, "Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."—(Matt. x:5-6.)

"To the Jew First."

Under all these circumstances we cannot wonder that the early church was disturbed with the thought that God's oath-bound covenant to their nation as well as His providential dealings with them for eighteen centuries, should now apparently be set aside, as though the special hope of Israel were a vain one, no more applicable to them than to others. The investigation of the matter therefore was deemed very important, as lying at the very foundation of all faith in the divine word, and this should not be considered as a proof of narrowness of mind on the part of these, but rather as a proof of loyalty to the Lord and His plan—a jealousy for the truth—a fear of leaving the old paths and by implication at least denying the foundation of all their hopes.

A somewhat similar question had arisen some years before when Peter, under the direction of a vision, visited Cornelius, the first Gentile convert, preached the gospel to him and his household and baptized them as believers after the Lord had witnessed by the Holy Spirit that they were acceptable as Israelites indeed. At that time Peter's course was criticised, but his full explanation of the Lord's dealings satisfied the brethren. Now, Peter was among the first at the present conference to speak in favor of Paul and Barnabas and their preaching to the Gentiles. He reminded the conference that a good while before the Lord had indicated a breaking down of the middle wall of partition between Jews and Gentiles as respects the favors of this gospel age, and had illustrated this in the case of Cornelius and his family. Following this, Paul and Barnabas were permitted to explain their own course and the Lord's leadings, and how the blessing of the Lord came upon the Gentiles who believed, and the wonderful work of grace, and the miracles of healing, etc., wrought through the laying on of the apostles' hands.

Then Apostle James, who seems to have been the chairman of the convention, arose and indorsed the course of Paul and Barnabas, and called the attention of the conference to a prophecy made by Amos, which constitutes our text. He pointed out the previous experience of Simeon, surnamed Peter, how the Lord first showed His favor to the Gentiles, even to Cornelius and his family through him, and there indicated the divine purpose to be that not only the faithful Jews, but also some from the Gentiles should be selected to constitute the peculiar people of the Lord. The early church, all Jews by birth at first, had already realized that God was passing by their nation as a whole, and was merely taking out of it a remnant, a little flock of Israelites indeed. The Apostle James was now getting a clearer view of the divine intention, namely, that this little flock should be composed also in part of faithful Gentiles, begotten by the Holy Spirit and thus constituted spiritual Israelites—Israelites indeed.

"A People for His Name."

St. James declared that God was taking from the Gentiles a "people for His name." This may be understood to signify that as the faithful Israelites were invited to become the bride of Christ, and thus to take the name of the bridegroom, so Gentiles were now to be admitted to the same company, that they also might be sharers of the name of Christ—members of the bride, the Lamb's wife. We must remember this thought of a special elect spiritual class being selected from among men to be the bride and joint heir with Christ in His kingdom was to the Jews, as well as to us, a surprise. It was indeed included in the promises of the Old Testament, but so covered, so hidden, as to be unnoticed until brought to light by the Holy Spirit after Pentecost.

The Apostle Paul, it will be remembered, speaks of this as the "mystery of God (the secret of the divine plan), hidden from past ages and dispensations, but now revealed"—because the time had come for the selection of this special or bride class.—(Eph. iii:3-6.) Although the fact of the bride class was kept a secret during the Jewish age, and although it is not very clearly understood by the majority of Christian people even yet, it was stated distinctly in the prophecies as well as in the types. In these types, for instance, we see how Abraham typified God, how Isaac typified our Lord Jesus Christ, and how Rebecca typified the church, related to God only by becoming the bride of Christ, even as Rebecca's relationship to Abraham was through her union with Isaac. Thus it comes about, as the apostle declares, that "if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise"—"heirs of God, joint heirs with Jesus Christ our Lord."—our bridegroom. (Gal. iii:29; Rom. viii:17.)

In divine providence the custom of the wife dropping her own name and assuming the name of her husband is universal, and was so guided by providence that the matter might be a type or illustration of how the church loses her own identity and name and assumes those of her husband. Thus in the scriptures the name Christ, which signifies the anointed, while primarily given to our Lord Jesus in His own person, is in a secondary sense applicable to all the church, His bride, His body. This, too, was intimated in the Old Testament prophecies. It reads: "This is the name whereby He shall be called—the Lord our righteousness," and again, "This is the name whereby she shall be called—The Lord our righteousness."

The Hidden Mystery.

The early church learned gradually respecting this mystery of the bride class to be joint-heirs with the bridegroom in the kingdom, and they learned gradually, too, that in this bride class the Lord would accept Gentiles of the proper heart attitude to be fellow-heirs and of the same body. After calling this matter to the attention of the conference, the Apostle James proceeded to point out that all this was consistent with the prophecies of the past, one of which he quoted, After these things (in the future, in the end of this age, when the bride class is being chosen), will come the time for the restoration of the nation of Israel to divine favor, and then will follow a general favor to all the Gentiles also. The tabernacle of David, which is fallen down, refers to the family of David, which by divine arrangement was the royal family of the nation of Israel. The last representative of David upon the throne was Zedekiah, and it will be remembered that at the time of his overthrow the Lord's pronouncement was, "Thou profane and wicked prince, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, remove the diadem and take off the crown; this shall not be the same * * * I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more until he come whose right it is; and I will give it to him."—Ezek. xxi:25-26.

The overturning had lasted for over 600 years until our Lord Jesus came, and the disciples had asked Him, "Wilt Thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" Should we now expect that as the heir you will at once take your throne and power and re-establish the dominion of Israel, which passed away entirely in the days of Zedekiah? Our Lord's answer was that it was not for them to know the time and seasons on the subject—that the Father had kept these in His own power and would accomplish them in due course. It was shortly after this that the disciples received the Pentecostal benediction, and under the enlightening influence of the Holy Spirit were being gradually taught more and more respecting the divine purpose. The very conference in which the apostles were engaged at this time was a further feature of the divine leading in the matter, showing them that the "mystery" class, the church, the bride of Jesus, was to be composed of select Gentiles as well as select Jews, and not until after this had been accomplished would the kingdom be established and the tabernacle of David, which had fallen down in Zedekiah's day, be re-established upon better, holier, more solid, foundations.

Blinded Israel's Stumbling.

The Apostle Paul brings out the same facts in his epistle to the Romans. In chapters nine and ten he points out to us that the fall of Israel as a nation came through the rejection of Jesus, but that their course was not a surprise to the Lord—that He had on the contrary previously foretold the same through the prophets. The apostle quotes several statements of the prophets to this effect—that Israel's table of divine bounties and blessings and promises would become this snare, their trap, and lead to their fall through pride and a feeling of self-sufficiency, which caused them to repudiate the great Life-giver, the way, the truth, the life. In the eleventh chapter the apostle, bringing up the other side of the question, assures the church, composed of Gentiles and Jews, that the nation of Israel, although blinded as respects the divine favors of this gospel age, although blinded as respects the "mystery," is still beloved of the Lord for the Father's sake, and that that nation, although blinded and cast aside, is not destroyed and will ultimately be recovered, "saved," from their blindness, which happened unto them as a nation through their rejection of the Messiah.

Thus the Apostle Paul in these statements is in full agreement with the Apostle James in our text: The tabernacle of David is to be rebuilt—the Jews as a nation are again to come into divine favor, after the mystery class has been completed, after the elect amongst the Jews and the elect from amongst the Gentiles shall all have been gathered to the number foreordained in the divine plan.

Mark how distinctly the Apostle Paul sets this matter forth. He says: "Blindness in part is happened unto Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles shall have come in"—come into the fellowship and joint-heirship with the faithful Israelites as members of the bride of Christ and joint-heirs with Him in the kingdom promised to the seed of Abraham. To leave no doubt on the matter the apostle particularizes, saying, "As ye (Gentiles) in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief; even so have these also now not believed, that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy. For God hath concluded them all in unbelief that He might have mercy upon all."—Romans xi:30-32.

Here is the plain statement that the blessing which is coming to Israel will be God's mercy exercised through the church—after the church shall have been completed and glorified. No special mercy or divine favor or opening of the blind eyes of Israel or turning of them from their blindness to look upon Him whom they have pierced should be expected until the completion and glorification of the church. Whatever they may enjoy in the interim will be so exceptional as to verify this scriptural statement, which indeed has been fully attested by the history of the intervening eighteen centuries. While, therefore, we see with pleasure that the eyes of the Jews are opening to some extent, we have no expectation that this will become general nor that it will lead to a clearness of sight until the appointed time.

David's Throne—How Restored.

The statement of our text respecting the rebuilding of the house of David, the repair of its ruins, etc., should be understood as figurative; certainly no literal residence of David could be referred to, no literal ruins of his ancient palace. The reference should undoubtedly be understood to signify the throne, or kingdom, of David—the ruins in which that kingdom has been for centuries and the re-establishment of that kingdom. Looking back to David and his divine commission as king of Israel, we find that like all the other circumstances of the Jewish age this was typical, and hence when we read that the throne of David was the throne of the Lord's kingdom we get the thought that the kingdom established in the hand of David was a typical one, as the nation over which he ruled was a typical one, and that he himself was a type or figure of the great king who is to be of the house and lineage of David according to the flesh. We see, then, that the establishment of Christ in kingdom power in the beginning of the millennial age will be the re-establishment of the kingdom of God, over which David ruled in a small and typical manner. Even in David's name we see a significance which points us to Christ—bridegroom and bride, head and body. David signifies beloved, and assuredly the glorified church, Christ the head and His gospel age faithful followers, the body, are the beloved of the Lord, the antitypical David.

As we have seen on previous occasions, and as we have presented in print in Millennial Dawn, this kingdom of Christ is to be purely a spiritual one, invisible to men, changed from fleshly conditions to spirit conditions. As our Lord declared to the Pharisees, the kingdom of God will be in the midst of mankind, yet none shall say, Lo here! or Lo there! for the kingdom of God cometh not with outward show that men should so recognize it.—Luke xvii:20.

There is, however, to be an earthly department of the kingdom, and this department will be visible to men. Those who will constitute this earthly department of the kingdom and be the visible representatives of it before men will be those ancient worthies of the Abrahamic stock referred to by the apostle in Hebrews xi:39-40. These, the apostle declares, shall receive a share in the divine promise, though not the superior part of it, which has been reserved for the spiritual Israelites of this gospel age, "God having provided some better thing for us (than for them), that they without us should not be made perfect."

The resurrection of these ancient worthies will be to the perfection of human nature, a totally different resurrection from that which is to come to the overcoming class of this gospel age, which will be to a divine nature, invisible to mankind. These resurrected perfect ancients, approved of God, will constitute the earthly representatives of the heavenly and invisible kingdom of Christ, and to these the world of mankind will come for instruction, and through these the divine law and messages of justice and mercy will be communicated to all the families of the earth, as it is written, "Out of Zion (from the kingdom class, the church glorified) shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord (the message of the Lord, the announcement), from Jerusalem."—(Isa. ii:3.)

"The Promise Sure to Both Seeds."

Thus the earthly plans of the kingdom of God will be in the hands of the Jews, and thus also the earthly features of the Abrahamic covenant will be fulfilled through the members of the natural seed of Abraham, and these as well as the spiritual seed will be used of God to bless first the Jews, the natural seed of Abraham, and subsequently every nation, people, kindred and tongue. Thus the apostle declares that the Abrahamic covenant will be fulfilled through both the natural and the spiritual seeds.—(Rom. iv:16.)

Here we remember the prophetic declaration respecting our Lord; "Instead of the fathers shall be the children, whom thou mayest make princes in all the earth."—(Psalms xxxxv:16.) Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the holy prophets were continually spoken of by the Jews as the "fathers," and our Lord is spoken of as a son of Abraham and also a son of David; but matters have undergone a great change. He who was the son of Abraham, of David and of Mary, by his great sacrifice not only redeemed the world, but also became the heir of God's great oath-bound covenant and the life-giver for Adam and his race. Whoever of mankind shall be resuscitated, restored, resurrected to life during the millennial age, will receive that life from the Savior, the life-giver; and since every life-giver is a father, it follows that Jesus will be the life-giver or father to all the world of mankind who will accept His favor—all outside the little flock of this gospel age called to be His bride, and those who will go into the second death. Thus we see that He will be the father or life-giver of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the prophets; and so, instead of being the fathers of Jesus they will become His children, and during the millennial age they will constitute the earthly representatives of the spiritual, invisible kingdom—its agents among men, "princes in all the earth," exponents of the glorified Christ, bridegroom and bride.

These princes of Jewish stock, according to prophecy, will be clothed with great power. They will be perfect men themselves. Their trial for eternal life having been passed successfully their resurrected bodies will be in every sense of the word complete, as was the original Adam, in the image and likeness of God. Possession of human powers in their perfection then will constitute them in every way superior to the remainder of mankind, and the superiority will be recognized by the world—by the Jews first and later by the Gentiles. Their manifestation among the Jews will be after the regathering of many of the faithful Hebrew people to their own land, and when they will be in the midst of a great trouble, antagonized by their Gentile neighbors.

The promise is that the Lord will at that time manifest himself on their behalf, as when he fought for them in the day of battle, in the day of Joshua. The manifestation of divine favor will be so marked as to create a new era in the affairs of Israel; their period of rejection will be passed, their period of favor fully begun, and among the first things connected with this favor will be the opening of the eyes of their understanding that they may look upon Him whom they pierced, and then, as the prophet declares, the Lord will pour upon them the spirit of prayer and of supplication, and forthwith the new covenant blessings will be theirs—their sins and iniquities the Lord will remember no more.—(Zech. xii:10.)

Israel's Favor Nearing.

The turning of the living generation of Israel from their present condition of blindness is in the scriptures figuratively spoken of by the prophet as a resurrection from the dead, as the apostle declares, "What shall the receiving of them be but life from the dead?" (Psalms xi:15.) It will be but the beginning of a revelation to the world of the great goodness of God and His wonderful plan of salvation, which extends His benefits and opportunities to every member of Adam's race. Hear the various prophecies: One, for instance, represents the other nations as witnessing the prosperity of Israel under the new regime in contrast with the anarchous conditions prevailing in their own territories, and declares that the desire of all nations shall come, and represents the nations as sick of war and perfidy and graft and anarchy, saying: "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob, and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths."—(Isa. ii:3.)

This same condition is referred to in our text which, after telling about the setting up of the Davidic throne, declares as a result, "that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord." How grand a time that will be! The scriptures describe it, saying: In His day—the millennial day, the day of Christ—the righteous shall flourish and evil-doers shall be cut off. Again they declare that the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the great deep. Again they assure us that at that time there will be no need of proclaiming the Lord or saying to one's brother and one's neighbor, know thou the Lord, know thou the Lord, because all shall know Him, from the least to the greatest.

Already signs of the budding of Israel's fig tree are visible; not only in their growing interest in Jesus as the renowned Jew, but also in their longing for Palestine, their old home—evidenced in their "Zionist movement." But their blindness will not depart, nor their hopes of national independence be realized until the "little flock" of spiritual Israel shall be completed and glorified; for thus saith the inspired record.—(Rom. xi:25:33.)

The statement of the text, "Upon whom my name is called," is clarified by an examination of the prophecy from which it is quoted (Amos ix:11-12), where it is rendered, "And as all the heathen (nations) which are called by my name." The sense of the expression is, we believe, that in that glorious time the Lord will provide a blessing upon all who heartily and sincerely bear His name—all who desire to be children of the great life-giver, and who accordingly hear and obey His voice. All such will be received back into harmony with God as members of the Christ family, as the apostle declares it is the divine purpose eventually to gather together under one head all things both in heaven and in earth. This gospel age accomplishes the unification of the bride and the bridegroom, the millennial age accomplishes the development of the children of Christ on the earthly plane of being.

All these blessings we have just examined were fully combined in the briefly stated oath-bound covenant, "In thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Another statement of God's favor in this respect was made to Abraham in the words, "I have constituted thee a father of many nations." Abraham was a type of God, and this expression implies that eventually all nations shall have the glorious privilege of becoming sons of God. First, the spiritual seed, "If ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed;" secondly, the natural seed of Abraham, first the princes, and subsequently all of the Jewish race who will come into harmony with God; thirdly, many nations—all nations, peoples, kindreds and tongues. These brought to a knowledge of their glorious opportunities during the millennial age, if willing and obedient, will be accepted also as Abraham's seed and as sons of God through Christ. No wonder the apostle—in view of these great things of God's plan not only for the salvation of the church of this gospel age, but ultimately for bringing blessing to every nation, people, kindred and tongue—exclaimed: "Oh, the depths of the riches both of the knowledge and wisdom of God! How unsearchable are His plans and His ways past finding out!—except as they are revealed to us through His word and spirit."—(Rom. xi:33; Cor. ii:10.)

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Sugar, Butter and Eggs Take Stiff Advances and Supply Is Short.

The past week in the local markets was one of extreme quiet in all lines. The election, breaking into the middle of the week, was largely responsible for the dullness which characterized the market. Until it was over and the celebrating of victory ended, buyers did not seem to feel like doing anything.

As a consequence of this the early part of the week was almost dead. Later in the week business commenced to revive, and by Friday a good trade was doing in all lines. Advances in a few articles were the features of the week, notably that of sugar, which advanced another 10 points Saturday morning. This rise made an advance of 30 points in sugar within three weeks. The situation is far from satisfactory to the retail dealer, as it leaves him absolutely no profit for handling the stuff. There has been much complaint from this class and it is probable that the retail price of sugar will be advanced shortly unless the market breaks.

Butter suffered another phenomenal advance last Monday, going up 2 cents. It is believed that another rise will be announced when the Elgin board meets today. The butter market is in an extremely unsatisfactory state. There is not nearly enough high-quality butter to supply the demand, and the supply is shortening almost daily. Butter makers look for no improvement for a month yet, when the winter cows begin to come in.

Eggs are another advancing product, dealers reporting the greatest shortage of fresh eggs in their knowledge. Shippers in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Iowa, who formerly shipped 100 to 400 cases at a time, now find it difficult to fill orders for 50, and many of them are compelled to cut down to 25. The price has steadily gone up until it is now 27 cents a dozen, but dealers look for a 30-cent market in the near future. The hens seem to have simply quit laying.

In the produce lines there was nothing of special interest to report during the week. All lines were steady and dealers complained the first of the week of no trade, but a decided improvement was noted before Saturday. The indications for this week are good. The near approach of Thanksgiving will have much to do with the improvement of trade this week. The best informed dealers do not look for a boom, but expect a gradual and rapid improvement until after the first of the new year, when everything, they think, will be in full swing.

Flour held its own during the week and the coffee market showed no change, although there is much uneasiness in the coffee line. The market is very strong and the coffee crop this year was a disappointment. The shortage has already resulted in two advances in the east and one may be looked for here any day.

Receipts of fruit and produce during the week were light, and as a result stocks which were heavy before were greatly depleted. This was a source of great satisfaction to commission men and produce dealers, as it made them safe from loss by spoiling and also insured them good prices for all they handled. The receipts will probably increase this week, as some lines are quite low. The following is the report of fruit and produce left on hand last Saturday: Apples, 110 cars; bananas, 22; cabbage, 78; carrots, 1; celery, 7; grapes, 17; lemons, 3; onions, 18; oranges, 6; parsnips, 2; pears, 12; potatoes, 104; sweet potatoes, 17; turnips, 7; California fruits, 1; miscellaneous, 8.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

Receipts of hay, grain and feed in the local yards yesterday were as follows: Pennsylvania lines, 22 cars hay, 30 cars oats, 1 car corn, 1 car feed; Baltimore & Ohio, 7 cars hay, 2 cars corn; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 3 cars hay, 1 car oats.

Although there were no sensational features in the hay and grain market last week there was a good week's business transacted and dealers generally were satisfied. Prices advanced on oats and shelled corn and the figures on all classes of stock were generally satisfactory. The situation remains practically unchanged. The demand for shelled corn continues heavy, with supply somewhat short. New shelled corn coming in, however, is relieving this situation. It is believed the coming week will find plenty of new stock arriving and the market will feel easier all around. First-class hay is meeting with as ready sale as before and the best stock is easily disposed of at full quotations. Lower grades have to be pushed, but are finding a readier market than a week or two ago.

CASH WHEAT SCARCE; PRICES HOLD STEADY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Scarcity of cash wheat held option prices comparatively steady today. At the close the December delivery was off a shade and May ¼c. Corn is down ¼@⅝c. Oats are up ⅛c, and provisions 7½@12½c.

Small receipts in the northwest and firmness of cables caused a steady tone in the wheat market at the opening. Initial quotations of December were ⅛c higher at $1 14⅛. May was ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at $1 14⅛@1 14⅜. Sentiment in the pit, however, was inclined to bearishness as the result of fear that the total world's movement for the week would show a considerable increase.

While offerings were light the demand was not sufficient to prevent a decline in prices, December dropping to $1 14. May sold off to $1 13¾. Toward the middle of the session the market became quite strong, especially for the May delivery, which advanced to $1 14; December rallied to about the opening figure. The factors that contributed to the firmness yesterday were prominent influences today. The cash situation, however, was perhaps the most potent of them all. Minneapolis reported an advance of 4 cents a bushel in the price of low grade wheat, while higher grades were in good demand at firm prices. Arrivals in the southwest were much smaller than a year ago. A message from Kansas City claimed that the movement would continue to decrease. Total primary receipts yesterday were 400,000 bushels less than on the corresponding day a year ago. Trading was quiet throughout the entire day, operations being confined mainly to local trades. The market closed steady with December at $1 14⅜@1 14½. May closed at $1 14. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 73,100 bushels. Primary receipts were 850,200 bushels, compared with 1,250,000 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 602 cars, against 786 cars last week and 924 cars a year ago.

Sentiment in the corn market was bullish as a result of small stocks, but the government crop report was so overwhelmingly bearish as to hold many buyers in check. Excellent weather conditions also favored the bears. Private advices from points in Illinois indicated that the new crop is ready to be moved in bulk, but on the other hand, Nebraska grain men report that farmers will not sell new corn. Realizing sales caused an easy tone late in the day. December opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 51¼@51⅜c, sold at 51⅝@52¼c, and closed at 51⅛c. Local receipts were 140 cars, with three of contract grade.

A good cash demand caused a firm tone in speculative trading in oats. The volume of business was very light. December opened unchanged at 29c, sold up to 29⅜c, and closed at 28⅛c. Local receipts were [illegible] cars.

Provisions were weak early in the session as a result of lower prices at the yards, but covering by shorts in all caused a firm tone. Final quotations on January pork were up 12½c at $12 75@12 77½; lard and ribs were each up 7½c at $7 12½ and $6 60, respectively.

Estimated receipts for Monday—Wheat, 64 cars; corn, 253 cars; oats, 115 cars; hogs, 43,000 head.

Advance in Credit Balances Was Most Agreeably Received

When the field developments and other conditions prevailing were reviewed a week ago it was stated that an advance in the credit balance market was expected by eastern operators and producers. This view of the situation was based on the pipe line statements which showed that the runs and shipments were getting on more even terms and of the prevailing scarcity of new producing territory in the lower southwest and southeastern Ohio.

The posting of new quotations last Thursday was not so much of a surprise. The advance had been anticipated and the most gratifying thing in that connection was the substantial size of the advance. When the Seep purchasing agency posted new quotations at the opening for business last Thursday morning and producers found that the price for credit balances for crude of the Pennsylvania grade had been put up 4 cents and that of the Northwestern Ohio and Indiana fields 2 cents, making the quotation for Pennsylvania $1 60, North Lima $1 07 and South Lima and Indiana $1 02, the appreciation was somewhat greater than had been anticipated. However, it would not seem to be out of proportion to the great effort that has been made to increase the production in the lower southwest and the meager returns that have followed in almost every part of West Virginia and southeastern Ohio.

Notwithstanding that the weather conditions as well as the roads have been favorable for pushing development work with great energy, there has been a decline in operations and the daily reports from the various districts in the east have been almost featureless for more than a month. The number of completions have greatly decreased and the productiveness of the new wells has been growing smaller for at least five months. The old wells have declined at an alarming rate, leaving fewer than a dozen in the list of 100 barrels a day or more in the lower southwest. New wells that have an initial production of 100 or more barrels a day are not of frequent occurrence and when one is found it is the occasion for special mention.

Scarcity of water is causing some annoyance and delay in completing and starting new work in a number of districts in the lower southwest and southeastern Ohio fields. Operators in a part of Harrison, Lewis and Doddridge counties have not turned a wheel for some weeks, and will not be able to complete the work started until the different sections have been visited by heavy rains. All of the mountain streams in the sections named in West Virginia have been dry for several months and work that should have been started and completed before now is still waiting.

The Yellow Creek district in Calhoun county completed more wells during the past week than any other in West Virginia. The size of the new wells differed little from what has been the average for more than a month. The present average, at time of completion, is now about 30 barrels a day. The old wells have declined and those once having an individual production of 100 or more barrels a day have all fallen below with the exception of two, the South Penn company's No. 8 on the H. I. Jackson farm, and Leonard, Carr & Gilmore's No. 1 on the Richard-Bush farm.

In operations this district still leads all others and is likely to hold that position for some time. No other locality shows any likelihood of a revival in operations.

West of Mannington, Marion county, a good deal depends upon the results of the wells now drilling in the 30-foot development on Bartholomew run. With the wells now under way completed much more will be known of this pool. Should they come up to expectations there will be an immediate increase in development work. Up to this time but three wells have been drilled into the producing formation. Of the trio, the Delmar Oil Company's No. 1 on the Hays farm is the best and is still holding up at better than 200 barrels a day. The South Penn Company's No. 2 on the Pitzer farm will be the next well due. When drilling into the 50-foot a fair gas pressure was developed.

Near Downs station, in the same county, the Fairmont & Grafton Gas Company drilled in a test on the Morgan farm and were surprised by getting a good oil producer. The well placed 125 barrels to its credit the first 24 hours after it was drilled into the pay.

The Littleton district, in Wetzel county, has not furnished any large producers of late. More than a mile to the southwest of developments McDermott & Co. are due in the sand at an important test on the J. W. Showalter farm. Should this test come in a good producer it will show quite an extension to the development and make the territory between it and the old development attractive. There is nothing calling for special mention in other deep sand districts. The new wells are small and the list of dusters increasing.

In the shallow sand districts, none outside of the Wick development, in Tyler county, shows any activity. There is still some wildcatting with a view to opening new pools, but there is only a small amount of that class of work.

Operators in Southeastern Ohio are still fairly active, the shallow sand districts, in Washington, Morgan and Noble counties, showing the greatest activity. Near Newport, Washington county, Morrison & Co. were agreeably surprised when they drilled their No. 3 on the A. Friedal farm into the Berea grit, early in the week, and got a producer that started at 15 barrels an hour, and at the close was still holding up at 240 barrels a day. This is the best producer that Southeastern Ohio has furnished for some time. In the shallow sand district, on Wolf creek, Morgan county, the Pure Oil Producing Company made a good strike on the H. H. Greenlee farm. It produced 150 barrels the first 24 hours. This and the Newport strike were the exceptions for anything better than small pumpers and dusters on the Ohio side.

THREE CHURCHES WERE DEDICATED

New Twelfth U. P. of Allegheny, Mt. Olivet Mission and Asbury Chapel Were Opened.

OFFERINGS WERE LIBERAL

Three houses of worship were dedicated in the two cities yesterday, two by United Presbyterian congregations and one by the Methodist Episcopal church.

Special services were held morning, afternoon and evening in connection with the dedication of the Twelfth United Presbyterian church, Western avenue and Manhattan street, Allegheny.

The morning service was opened by the pastor, the Rev. Ira T. McCreary, who delivered the invocation. The Rev. W. R. Wilson of Carnegie preached on "A Supreme Purpose," holding it to be the glorification of God.

In the afternoon a fraternal service was conducted, with the Rev. G. W. MacDonald presiding. The Rev. Dr. D. F. McGill delivered the invocation and the Rev. Dr. W. H. McMillan led in prayer. A short address on "The Church and the Home" was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Park. The Rev. Dr. Alexander Gilchrist, secretary of the United Presbyterian board of home missions, spoke on "The Church and the Community," and the Rev. George W. Robinson spoke on "The Church and the World." Both services were well attended and $2,000 in offerings was raised.

The Services at Night.

In the evening the dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. C. R. Watson, which was followed by a dedicatory service by the pastor, concluding with a dedicatory prayer by the congregation.

At the conclusion of the dedicatory service an offering of $500 was lifted, making $2,500 for the day. The new church and site cost $16,000, and with yesterday's collection a debt of but $2,500 remains.

Asbury Methodist Episcopal chapel, Forbes and Murray streets, the temporary home of the Fifth Avenue Methodist Episcopal congregation, was opened yesterday with special services morning and evening. The structure is of artificial stone and seats 300. The old church building has been rented to the portion of the congregation which left the Bethel A. M. E. church with the pastor, the Rev. I. S. Lee. The Fifth avenue congregation will build a new, large church adjacent to Asbury chapel, and plans for the building will be considered by the congregation at an early date.

Yesterday morning the Rev. Dr. James A. Miller preached in the chapel, and in the evening, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. E. M. Wood, occupied the pulpit. Large congregations attended both services, the special features of which were two special classical musical programs rendered by the church organist and choir.

Olivet Mission Dedicated.

Olivet Mission, a branch of the Shadyside United Presbyterian church, was dedicated last night. The old building on Ella street, near Liberty avenue, in which services have been conducted for the past 13 years, has been remodeled at a cost of $4,600, and presents a fine appearance.

The Rev. J. K. McClurkin, pastor of the mother church, and who preached the first sermon in the little mission when it was started on Baum street, 13 years ago, preached the dedicatory sermon. The building's seating capacity has been greatly increased in the alterations and it was packed to the doors. An addition of 30 feet has been built in the rear and a 10-foot addition in the front. The interior has undergone a change. Valuable stained glass windows have been installed. There is still a debt of $2,800 on the improvements.

E. N. Orr, a student at the Western Theological seminary, conducts the work at the mission. There are no Sunday morning or evening services and the building is mainly used for Sunday school purposes and for weekly prayer meetings. The Sunday school has a membership of over 300.

HOMEWOOD MAN MISSING.

Robert McElroy Disappears After Telling His Wife He Intended to Kill Himself.

Mrs. Robert McElroy of 7625 Frankstown avenue, Homewood, last evening asked the East End police to locate her husband, who has not been home since Saturday afternoon. Mrs. McElroy told the police that her husband had given bail to appear as defendant in a suit before Alderman Negley on Saturday night.

McElroy was arrested last Wednesday on a charge of taking tools from Banker Brothers, and since had been greatly worried over the outcome of the suit. On leaving home Mrs. McElroy alleges her husband said he intended to commit suicide. He did not appear for a hearing before the alderman and had not returned home up to 5 o'clock last evening.

RAIDED A STORE.

Annie Terup was arrested yesterday for removing a lot of clothing and millinery from the shop of Mrs. Jacob Fanabaum at 536 Second avenue, and Mary Fleeter, her friend, was arrested for complicity in the theft. The two women are Poles and unable to speak English.

The Terup girl was a servant at the place and, it is alleged, gave the Fleeter girl the goods to carry to their home at 2436 Forbes street.

Police Captain McEvoy arrested the women and recovered a lot of silk waists, wrappers, collars and other articles at their home.

The Christmas Delineator.

The December Delineator, with its message of good cheer and helpfulness, will be welcomed in every home. The fashion pages are unusually attractive, illustrating and describing the very latest modes in a way to make their construction during the busy festive season a pleasure instead of a task, and the literary and pictorial features are of rare excellence. A selection of love songs from the Wagner operas, rendered into English by Richard le Gallienne and beautifully illustrated in colors by J. C. Leyendecker, occupies a prominent place, and a chapter in the Composers' Series, realting the romance of Wagner and Cosima, is an interesting supplement to the lyrics. A very clever paper entitled "The Court Circles of the Republic," describes some unique phases of Washington social life is from an unnamed contributor, who is said to write from the inner circles of society. There are short stories from the pens of F. Hopkinson Smith, Robert Grant, Alice Brown, Mary Stewart Cutting and Elmore Elliott Peake, and such interesting writers as Julia Magruder, L. Frank Baum and Grace MacGowan Cooke, hold the attention of the children. Many Christmas suggestions are given in needlework and the cookery pages are redolent of the Christmas feast. In addition, there are the regular departments of the magazine, with many special articles on topics relating to woman's interests within and without the home.

DEFEAT DOES NOT DISTURB SWALLOW

Prohibition Leader Says Country Cannot Endure Half Drunk and Half Sober.

PARTY MUST SOLVE QUESTION

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
HARRISBURG, PA., Nov. 13.

Dr. Swallow is encouraged rather than discouraged over his defeat at last Tuesday's election, as the Prohibition nominee for president. "We are well satisfied," said Dr. Swallow, "with having nearly doubled the vote of four years ago, for, if we continue the same arithmetical progression, the Prohibition party will soon be victorious.

"In one sense," he continued, "Prohibitionists will never be satisfied until they have elected legislative, judicial and executive officers throughout the country and have secured the abolition of the legalized liquor traffic, which implies, of course, primarily the dissolution of the profit-sharing partnership existing between the government and the traffic.

"We are not satisfied that the church should say in its law-making bodies that no political party should receive the support of Christian men so long as it fails to put itself on record in an attitude of open hostility to the liquor business and then 90 per cent of them, as in the last election, proceed to vote for just such parties as they condemned.

Means Church Decline.

"Such ecclesiastical perfidy precludes a possibility of a genuine revival and, on the other hand, insures church decline."

"Do you believe the Prohibition party will ever be an important factor in the politics of the nation?" Dr. Swallow was asked.

"It is now an important factor as a great educational force," was the reply, "keeping the subject constantly before the people and pointing the way to better things than are involved in the commercial aspect of the old parties. I might answer in the language of Abraham Lincoln concerning slavery, that this country cannot long endure half-drunk and half-sober."

"Will you be a candidate in 1908 for the Prohibition nomination for president?"

"That's too far away," replied Dr. Swallow thoughtfully.

"Do you favor the passage by the next legislature of a bill for general local option for Pennsylvania, as proposed by the Anti-Saloon league?"

"Yes; I favor anything and everything that agitates and educates against the liquor traffic. And yet in the final analysis we must come to prohibition with a party behind it. We may travel through the wilderness of non-partisan, local option, constitutional amendment and all the other vagaries, but we will not have a prohibition that prohibits till men are elected who are pledged to fidelity to the one issue."

The Fault of Democracy.

"What is the matter with the Democratic party and what is its future?"

"It lacks a great moral principle around which to build. It has never recovered from having championed the immoralities of African slavery and will not until fumigated by the championing of some great moral issue, as did the Republican party in taking up the anti-slavery issue a half-century ago."

Dr. Swallow has entirely recovered from the effects of his two-months' stumping tour of the country and is again attending to his duties as manager of the Methodist book rooms in this city.

DR. J. LEONARD LEVY TELLS OF JEWISH VIEW OF LIFE

Holds That When Justice Tempered by Mercy Is Established the World Will Be Ideal.

"A Jewish View of Life" was told by the Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy before the Reform Congregation Rodeph Shalom in the Eighth street temple yesterday morning, in the fourth lecture of the present Sunday series. Dr. Levy said in part:

According to the people of Israel the world is a realm in which moral ideals and not blind forces are at play. Civilization does not mean to the Jew the reproduction in mechanical form of nature's methods alone; it means in addition to this the uplifting of man by the endeavor to make him realize moral ideals in his national, domestic and personal life. This conception permeates every aspect of the life of the Jew and wherever he is true to it you will find him striving for righteousness with God Himself as the ideal of righteousness.

The basic conception of social life is justice, and according to the Jewish view there can be no peace and the Messiah cannot come until justice is done on earth. Where no justice is there no love can be, and if we do not succeed in establishing the smaller, how shall we succeed in introducing the greater? If men tell me that justice, simple justice, is already established, and that on this bedrock the soil may be placed in which a luxuriant crop of virtues may grow, I charge them to consider the case of Israel, which is even in this day a manifest denial that justice is yet done to a solitary people.

The world's worries and wars, society's turmoils and trials, mankind's afflictions and adversities are all so many evidences that justice, simple justice, is not sufficient for all the needs of the human soul. It must be kissed into a higher existence by the practice of mercy and when mercy tempers justice, righteousness becomes established.

The world is not a Capuchin chapel, a place of mortification, self-suppression and self-crucifixion. Neither is the world a vale of Daphne which would make of earth everything and of earthly, material pleasure all, to be controlled by the thought "get all you can, enjoy all you can, keep all you can." Neither is the world a cafe chantant to which men repair that under the influence of bestiality they may drink themselves into insensibility.

In the Jewish view of life there is no such thing as a rupture between the sacred and the secular. With the exception of sin, which is the offense against man's moral and spiritual nature, everything is sacred. The market-place, the office, the operating room of the physician, the court house, the bedchamber, the kitchen, the public offices of the city's political activities; all become places in which sacred duties are to be performed; for life means sanctification, the striving to be holy as God is holy. If others teach this they are teaching pure Judaism. If others teach it not, Israel's mission to witness for God becomes all the more imperative upon every faithful child in Israel's spiritual household.

IN TOUCH WITH CIVILIZATION

LINEMEN ENDURE HARDSHIPS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Gen. A. W. Greely, chief signal officer of the United States army, in his annual report gives an interesting account of the work performed by his corps in establishing an all-American telegraphic system in Alaska, saying the undertaking is unique in the annals of telegraphic engineering. The cables used in the Alaskan system would reach from Newfoundland to Ireland and the land lines from Washington to Texas, there being 2,079 miles of cable, 1,439 miles of land lines and 107 miles of wireless lines.

Gen. Greely says the United States has brought southeastern Alaska, the Yukon valley and the Behring straits region into telegraphic communication with the rest of the civilized world. He says that after a thorough consideration he decided to install material of American manufacture to be operated by American soldiers and to be laid by an American ship, except some cable instruments and machinery. A selected force of men has been so trained that today the signal corps of the army is competent to operate in war emergency a submarine cable of any length.

"Repairs in Alaska are maintained," the report says, "by parties stationed at log cabins about 40 miles apart, one signal corps repairman and two assistants from the line of the army and a dog team being at each cabin. The men meet the terrible condition of hardship and privation uncomplainingly and with a fortitude characteristic of the American soldier."

The report says the Nome wireless station has daily and uninterruptedly transmitted the entire telegraphic business of Seward peninsula, 5,000 words being exchanged in one afternoon between Safety harbor and St. Michael. The signal corps of the army, he says, is now regularly operating the longest wireless section of any commercial telegraph system in the world. The annual business of the Seattle-Sitka cable is estimated at $25,000 and during the year there has been spent $56,936 for Alaskan telegrams handled by the signal corps.

Speaking of the Philippines he says the 16 most important islands of the archipelago are now connected by cable, which lines, he adds, are recognized as indispensable both by the military and civil authorities. During the year there has been collected and deposited in the insular treasury of the Philippines, telegraph line receipts to the amount of $58,675, there having been sent, including government business, all told more than 2,000,000 messages, the net expense being $325,901. The report says it is a matter of the utmost importance that signaling apparatus of suitable character be installed at the more important military defenses along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts to permit of intercommunication between the army and the navy. It is strongly urged in the report that steps be taken by the United States to adhere to the international telegraph union and that international regulations to govern wireless telegraphy in time of war be adopted.

SUNDAY GAZETTE FILLED WITH RARE LITERARY GEMS

Every Column of Great Journal Contained Items of More Than Passing Interest for Readers.

There was not a dull column on any of the many pages of the Pittsburgh Sunday Gazette. Every line of type that went into the great journal told a story of interest to someone. The war, politics, nation, state or city all made valuable contributions which went to make up a menu of Sunday reading hard to surpass, and which certainly has not been surpassed in any journal in many months.

Those who have been closely following the trend of battle between Russia and Japan will learn with sorrow of the death of the gallant Japanese leader, Gen. Kuroki, who succumbed to wounds inflicted by a Russian shell. The king and queen of Portugal leave for a visit to King Edward of England. The Anglo-French colonial treaty is approved by the French chamber of deputies.

Two of the most important items of interest in the field of politics are in relation to Senator Foraker and Secretary Shaw. The latter talks of further invasions in the solid south, and expresses the belief that Kentucky, Missouri and Virginia can all be made permanently Republican. Senator Foraker is said to have presidential aspirations for 1908. J. O'Donovan Rossa, the Irish exile, goes back to Ireland, followed by the plaudits of his countrymen. The election calls to Canton memories of late President McKinley. Eleven persons were killed in a Union Pacific wreck in Wyoming. Edward Jackson, who killed a sheriff and a citizen at Montgomery, W. Va., returns to scenes of his crimes to attend the funeral of his brother, and friends prevent his capture.

Superintendent Wallace circumvents the escape of a prisoner from central station, who opens his cell door at will. Greater Pittsburgh petition to be circulated in Allegheny next week. Great interest is being manifested in The Gazette Proverb Contest. Losers settle quaint election bets. Banquet tendered Col. J. M. Schoonmaker on his appointment as chief of staff of the G. A. R. The court orders fines imposed on Sue Williams and Lillian Earle refunded, and Roundsman Dean is charged with perjury. Wilkinsburg counterfeiter gets a light sentence for passing surpious money. A miner is held up and robbed by two men in the Baltimore & Ohio station. Membership of both the Republican and Democratic state conventions will be increased. Carnegie library at Duquesne is formally dedicated. At the schoolmasters' banquet Dr. William H. Maxwell said that Pittsburgh cooks are better paid than school teachers. Citizens leaders say that they will make known their plans concerning primaries next Saturday. City Solicitor Rodgers will not have an opinion on the traction service ready for councils today. Director Bigelow is to let 10 contracts at once for the filtration plant, and suit is indefinitely delayed. A wife finally gets a decree in divorce after third suit.

In the field of sports interest centered around the annual football game between Yale and Princeton, the "Blues" downing the "Orange and Black" 12 to 0. All of the big college teams made good showings and there were no football surprises. H. A. Preston won the Speer trophy cup on the Pittsburgh golf links. Young Corbett and Battling Nelson have entered into a peculiar training agreement. The husky lads from Kiski college defeated Shadyside by a score of 22 to 6. Records show that there were more 2:10 trotters turned out during the past season than ever before. The stand taken by John T. Brush of the New York National league club makes it certain that there will be post-season games between National and American league pennant winners.

The New York stock market had a buoyant opening, but reacted slightly and closed irregular. The weekly bank statement showed a decrease of $14,789,600 in loans, a decrease of $6,244,700 in cash and a decrease of $1,217,850 in surplus reserve. The Pittsburgh stock market was active and higher. Prices are held steady by a scarcity of cash wheat.

TRAIN STRIKES A MAN; THE PILOT SAVES HIM

ALTOONA, Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Samuel Hoover, while driving across the railroad, near Tyrone, was struck by a fast Bald Eagle railroad train. He was thrown into the air a considerable distance and landed in front of the engine on the pilot. At Tyrone, the scalesman noticed the form on the pilot. The train was stopped and Hoover removed. His head and face were badly cut and he was severely bruised, but will recover.

A RACE FOR LIFE.

Spurring his jaded horse to renewed efforts when the animal should be refreshed with proper food and rest, is about as sensible as prescribing nerve tonics, alcoholic compounds, coca mixtures and cocktails which only spur on the already weakened nervous system. Neither does it do to put the nerves to sleep with narcotics. When you feel worn-out, broken down, jaded, and feel the effects of brain tire as well as nerve weakness, sleeplessness and fatigue, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a tonic which will do you lasting good, build you up, increase your appetite and strength and improve the condition of the blood. When the blood is impoverished the nerves feel the effect. Nervousness in nine cases out of ten is the "cry of the starved nerves for food." Feed the nerves on rich blood and all nervous manifestations will cease.

"It has been seven months since using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I only used three bottles of the medicine when it made me feel like a new man," writes S. A. Miller, Esq. (care of Mr. Amos Hyre, R. D. 10), Dayton, Ohio. "I had doctored with two local physicians without benefit. I felt all worn out, and had an awful misery in my back for two years but noticed a change for the better when I began using your 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"
